The Gold Decision
Cutting Off Women's Heads
What Editors Should Know
New York Sees Huey Long

The Supreme Court upholds the President and Congress in their legislative and executive action outlawing gold as money in the United States and invalidating "gold clauses" in private contracts.

The Supreme Court's decision is all the more important and gratifying because every American knows that no consideration outside the letter of the Constitution could have influenced Chief Justice Hughes or his associates.

The Supreme Court decision disposes of the statement that President Roosevelt's administration has been proceeding "regardless of the Constitution." The decision will be reassuring to business and the public generally.

In Wall Street those that had waited, trembling, for the gold decision, not daring "to trade," rushed in and bid stocks up rapidly. Wheat was traded in up to the legal limit and trading suspended. Cotton rose a dollar a bale; corn, rye and oats went upward with the rest. Perhaps tomorrow some of the buyers will ask themselves, "just why did I buy?" It takes so little to start men gambling.

When the guillotine in the French revolution sliced off the head of Madame Roland, the executioner politely asked that she permit him to cut off her long hair, "otherwise your suffering might be horrible." Madame Roland consented, remarking:

"Strange that kindness should find its place in such as you."

When Chancellor Hitler's government yesterday morning cut off the heads of two young women, accused of spying, the proceedings were more businesslike. The executioner's assistant not only cut off their heads, but first shaved the back of their necks, in the fashion employed by modern surgery before operating.

The long hair might make the ax slip, burying the edge in the shoulder blade and humiliating the executioner. For Anne Boleyn, Henry the Eighth imported a famous French headsman—very considerate.

Tonight at the Palmer House, Chicago, editors of 260 daily newspapers, published in 22 mid-Western states, will hold their 50th anniversary banquet. Verne E. Joy, editor of the Centralia Sentinel, president of the association, says he would like "a half or three-quarters of an hour address on 'The Editorial Problems of Today and Tomorrow.'"

It would take more than a half or three-quarters of an hour to discuss the problems of editors and publishers in these days. The modern editor should be able to look in four directions at once, think in billions now, and later on in trillions, if Senator Huey gets started.

He should be able to guess what politicians mean; if they mean anything, their words mean little.

He must be on the lookout for Fascism that may come down from the top, if the large class of Americans not on the dole, or in labor unions, discover that nobody is particularly interested in them.

He must be on the lookout for something unpleasantly like revolution, that might start in case any well organized minority should be too seriously annoyed.

To be really successful, today's editor should be a combination mind reader, astrologer, fortune teller.

Senator Long, just at present in New York city, "going to and fro in the earth, and walking up and down in it," as Satan said to the Lord, gets the unpleasant news that somebody has sent a bomb to his office in Washington. It was not much of a bomb; it wouldn't explode if you set fire to it, or hit it with an ax; in fact it couldn't explode.

But it showed an evil desire to worry the senator from Louisiana, and that amazes the senator. New York observes that he considers real hostilities a possibility, especially in New York, where "share-the-wealth" does not arouse universal enthusiasm. He moves about with four armed guards, one on the right, one on the left—a little ahead of him, two right and left a little back of him. What they would do to anybody that should raise a finger would never be forgotten by the finger-raiser.

Even as he stood and ad-

FACES OUSTER WITH LEONARD

The governor also forecast a general shakeup of the Boston police department in addition to the ousting of Leonard.

"It looks like a general housecleaning," said the governor.

He refused Police Commissioner Leonard's request for a one week delay in tomorrow's public ouster proceedings before the executive council.

He called for the resignation of former Commissioner Hultman from the Metropolitan District Commission.

The Governor said disclosures to be made at the Leonard hearing "show a shocking and astounding condition in the department, as administered by Mr. Hultman."

And at the same time he indicated he would make General Charles H. Cole, state racing commission chairman, the object of removal proceedings unless the latter dropped Lawrence J. Bresnahan of Medway from the assistant secretaryship of the commission.

The governor moved for an immediate showdown with Cole, and said he was ready for Cole's resignation.

Declaring there was no possibility of any delay in the proceedings against Leonard, he said:

"If I were Mr. Hultman, I would tender my resignation be-

TYDINGS BONUS Bill Introduced

Washington, Feb. 19—Senator Tydings (D.), Maryland, today introduced in the Senate his bill for immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus through a bond issue to mature in 1945 and negotiable for cash now.

Tydings asserted that the proposed bonds would be readily salable, but would not immediately place a financial burden on the nation. The service certificates must be paid in 1945, the date of maturity of the proposed bonds, anyway, he added.

RICHEST GIRL Files Tax Plea

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—Reputedly the world's richest girl—the former Doris Duke who married recently—doesn't think she owes Uncle Sam $34,601 in taxes for 1932.

An appeal was filed today with the board of tax appeals, on behalf of the heiress to the Duke tobacco fortune by Mrs. Nanaline H. Duke, her trustee and guardian.

Drive to Cut Dollar

By Associated Press

Washington, Feb. 19—Amid the New Deal jubilation and world excitement over the 5 to 4 Supreme Court decision, under which all debtors could continue today to pay their gold clause obligations with present paper money on a dollar-for-dollar basis, there arose these developments:

Senate inflationists, led by Senator Thomas (D-Okla.) started a new movement to drive the value of the dollar still further down. Thomas praised the court decision, declaring it shows Congress has "unrestrictable power in handling money."

Door Ajar

Some experts saw potentialities for future legal battles by holders of government gold bonds who might go into court seeking to show they had suffered actual losses in purchasing power by the government's abrogation of the gold clauses.

While President Roosevelt was "gratified," Secretary Morgenthau declared himself "very much pleased," and the Administration tossed aside all its elaborate plans to meet an adverse decision, there

H. M. S. AUSTRALIA In Sea Mystery

Colon, C. Z., Feb. 19 (INS)—Considerable speculation centered today on the British warship Australia, which for three days has been virtually incommunicado in the Pacific, the United States naval radio station here being unable to contact her.

The Australia, with several members of the crew of the schooner Seth Parker aboard after a rescue during a Pacific storm, was believed to be short of fuel.

3 IN LOVE Suit Deny CHARGES

SISTER AIDS MRS. WALLACE

Long after serving her with divorce papers, William Wallace, Jr., Boston insurance broker, remained over night in his Newton home with his wife, it was testified today in Middlesex Probate Court.

The testimony was given by Mrs. Phyllis G. McCormick of 1682 Beacon street, Brookline, sister of Mrs. Florence E. "Betty" Wallace, attractive sportswoman, from whom Wallace seeks a divorce, naming three men.

One man he named is Francis P. Turner, a Waltham city councillor and Boston lawyer, with offices at 53 State street.

Yesterday Wallace testified that he found his wife and Turner in a locked room of the Wallace home when he arrived unexpectedly, and that Turner promised never to see her again.

Today the Waltham city councillor gave his version of the incident and denied that he had been in the room with Mrs. Wallace.

He Called Police

According to Turner, he had gone to the home expecting to talk with Wallace about his family affairs and was sitting in the living room when Wallace arrived "in a very intoxicated condition — fighting drunk."

"Wallace pushed his wife down on the sofa and said he was going to beat her up," testified Turner. "I told him he had better go back to his hotel, but he said when I left he was going to beat her.

"I telephoned the police and when two officers arrived, one of them threw the beam of a flashlight on Mr. Wallace's face and said, 'Drunk again.'"

That was on the night of last September 23, Turner testified, and the divorce papers were served on Mrs. Wallace in October.

According to Mrs. McCormick's testimony, she arrived home from England and stayed with her sister in the Newton home until Thanksgiving, with Wallace meantime living in a downtown hotel.

One night in the latter part of November, however, Wallace arrived at his Newton home, Mrs. McCormick testified, was friendly and remained all night in the bedroom with his wife.

Denial was also made by another of the co-respondents, Otis M. Slocum of University road, Brookline, a salesman, that he had been over-friendly with Mrs. Wallace.

ASYLUM for Zuckerman SUSPECT

Miller Frank Clark, indicted for first degree murder in the knife slaying of Ethel Zuckerman, 18-year-old South End bakery attendant, was committed today to Boston State Hospital for 35 days additional observation.

The commitment order was by Judge John M. Gibbs in superior court, acting on a report by Drs. L. Vernon Briggs and Abraham Myerson.

The alienists reported that Clark had a diseased brain; that he has an incurable malady; that his criminal responsibility is impaired; that he has no knowledge of current events, and has a deficient judgment.

Bomb Guard On Court As Slayer Dies

Extra guards and a special detail of police were again in the corridors and at entrance to the building where Judge Nelson P. Brown, who sentenced Kaminski to death, sits in Superior court.

Last week, Judge Brown and Governor Curley received death threats in the Kaminski case—and yesterday an unidentified woman telephoned a warning to District Attorney Warren L. Bishop that the courthouse was to be bombed.

Services for Kaminski will be held probably Thursday, in Sacred Heart church in New Britain, with burial in the parish cemetery.

Mrs. John Kaminski, mother of the boy, kept vigil in her home last night until after the time set for the electrocution.

Calling for a drink of water as the clock ticked past the zero hour, Mrs. Kaminski said, "I forgive them for taking my boy."

WRIT OF ERROR PLEA GRANTED

Case to Be Reviewed

MOVE AUTOMATICALLY HALTS EXECUTION UNTIL FALL

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 19—A writ of error granted to defense attorneys today stayed the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the murder of the Lindbergh baby which had been set for the week of March 18.

Today's action means that Hauptmann will have a respite from the death sentence until some time in September or October, as a further appeal to the court of pardons can be made if the court of errors and appeals upholds his conviction.

The writ was granted by Chancellor Luther A. Campbell on the application of C. Lloyd Fisher and Frederick A. Pope of the Hauptmann counsel.

The application requested a review of the conviction of Hauptmann on a charge of first degree murder by a jury before Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard last week at Flemington.

The date of the argument against the conviction before the Court of Errors and Appeals was set for March 28.

The Hauptmann lawyers went before the chancellor after having obtained a writ of poverty from Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard enabling them to have the voluminous record of the case printed at state expense.

At the hearing before Justice Trenchard the Attorney-General's office was represented by Theodore Backes. Attorney-General David T. Wilentz is in Florida.

Backes said that the Attorney-General was opposed to granting the petition of poverty, but that counsel had reached an agreement which caused the state to withdraw its objections.

May Help Pay

The objection of the attorney-general's office to the writ of poverty, Backes said, had been based on the fact that Hauptmann was the owner of certain mortgages now held by federal officials.

Defense counsel agreed that the mortgages, when they are returned to Hauptmann, will be applied to defray, in so far as they will, the expenses of printing the 8000 page record of the case which, it is estimated will exceed $15,000.

On this agreement the state's attorneys withdrew their objection.

The chancellor's order, which the defense attorneys obtained next, sends the appeal directly to the court of last resort in New Jersey, the court of errors and appeals.

The court of errors and appeals is comprised of the nine Supreme Court justices of New Jersey, six lay members and the chancellor.

As is customary, he will not sit when the case over which he presided comes before the court for review.

Although Chief of Defense Counsel Edward J. Reilly, after engaging in a controversy with Fisher last night over immediate appellate action or delay, failed to participate in legal moves, he was reported to be on his way to Trenton.

DOPE RAID DATA Given U. S. Jury

Records of narcotic seizures in places in Boston now under investigation by the Federal Grand Jury were taken to the federal building today by Police Inspector Edward Brundige.

The records were asked for by federal authorities and Inspector Daniel Curran, assigned to the police narcotic squad, was called into conference by Commissioner Leonard. Inspector Curran, after identifying the records, turned them over to Brundige.

ROGER BABSON Sees Trade Boom

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 19 (AP)—Roger W. Babson, business economist, forecast here today an immediate boom in business as a result of the gold decision, but he warned—"The day of reckoning will come."

Cash spending will increase in volume because private business is bound to gain, he asserted.

ELKS' CHIEF WARNS REDS PLAN OCTOBER REVOLT

Warning that Communists in the United States are organizing to conduct an October revolution was sounded today in Boston by Michael F. Shannon, visiting grand exalted ruler of the Elks.

Calling upon all patriotic American organizations to join the Elks in the war on Communism, Shannon said:

"When the order of Elks entered this fight, we were amazed to find such lack of knowledge by the American people of the subversive activities going on all around them.

"We were amazed to find Americans who laughed at the thought that Communistic activities in this country were secretly working for the overthrow of the country. They couldn't believe it.

"I have documents to show that Communists in this country are organizing to conduct another October revolution.

"But we have succeeded in making the people realize that Communism exists as a definite menace in this country, and that the chief aim and purpose of the increasing numbers of Communistic converts is to overthrow the American government by force and violence."

CRISIS IS AVERTED BY GOLD RULING

Business Goes Forward

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Financial Authority

Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service

New York, Feb. 19—Stripped of endless legal terminology and verbiage, the Supreme Court of the United States has upheld the right of Congress not only to write the monetary dictionary for the United States—but also to re-edit it at will.

Merryle Rukeyser

By a five to four decision, the majority of the Supreme Court, headed by Chief Justice Charles Evan Hughes, has again lived up to its traditional policy of regarding the Constitution not as a set of dead rigidities, but as a living document, which can through interpretation, grow and develop in accordance with the changing social and economic needs of the people.

The court offset the practical effect of differentiating between the validity of the gold clause in federal bonds and non-federal bonds.

In denying the right to Congress to nullify the promise of the government to meet federal obligations in gold, as specified, the court nevertheless refused to bondholders the right to sue in the court of claims to get more than paper dollars on the ground that they had really suffered no loss.

Stocks Jump

For weeks, the financial markets stood moribund and paralyzed waiting to hear from the court. Meantime, economic balance in the world of business and agriculture improved, and the stagnant markets lagged behind business.

Recognizing this, buyers, in a frenzied rush, placed orders as soon as the Supreme Court had spoken. There was accordingly a rise of one to ten points in stocks, and also tremendous institutional buying of government issues.

By indorsing the status quo, the court averts a new crisis, and enables business to go forward.

By settling the monetary litigation, the Supreme Court should help to relegate money to its place in the background.

Obscure Reality

Extremists in both camps—the orthodox "diehards," on the one hand, and the inflationists, on the other, exaggerate the power of money.

They obscure the fundamental reality that prosperity inheres in the work-power of millions of citizens, organized by men of initiative and enterprise, so that they can employ one another by interchanging the products of their hours of labor.

The Supreme Court avoids interruption to this process of readjustment by abstaining from forcing the country back to the pre-New Deal gold standard.

The court does not again make currency freely interchangeable with gold, as it had been prior to 1933. Instead of permitting gold coin to circulate again, we may decide to go on a gold bullion standard, in which the metal will remain in the background to act as a policeman to prevent overissuance of paper money.

U. S. Plans Huge Bond Conversion Campaign

By WILIAM S. NEAL

Copyright, 1935, by International News Service

Washington, Feb. 19—Fortified by the Supreme Court's gold rulings, the administration may start a huge bond conversion campaign.

This was disclosed today by a high official after a conference in which the fiscal and legal experts of the New Deal canvassed the effect of the court's rulings and the possibilities it opens for future action.

With $14,500,000,000 in government securities, containing the gold clause, and $5,100,000,000 in Liberty bonds outstanding—as found by the Supreme Court—the conversion program would call for eventual surrender of all. They would be replaced by other bonds.

Feared Premium

As long as the gold cases were under consideration and there was a possibility that Liberty bondholders could claim a 69 per cent premium, fiscal experts said, a bond conversion program was hopeless.

There remained the possibility that some Liberty bondholders might try to retain them indefinitely in the hope that, since the high court held that Congress stepped beyond its proper bounds in abrogating the gold clause, they might collect a premium.

Even though this hope was said by high officials to be impossible of realization, a bond conversion program may offer slight inducement to the bondholders to accept other issues.

With many of the bonds issued under the war-time acts coming due in the next few years, the Treasury, it was said, wants to replace them with new 20-year issues.

Foreign Angles

The gold abrogation law, which was before the high court, prohibits issuance of bonds with a promise to pay in gold in the future.

Thus, unless another Congress or administration repeals the law, the gold clause question will not rise again.

Two other questions arising from the court's ruling were being considered. They are:

Can foreign governments claim a 69 per cent premium on Liberty Bonds? And

Can foreigners holding private American bonds also claim the premium?

Whatever the legal answer to the first question is, there was a possibility that the administration would offer a premium to foreign governments holding bonds.

Congressional constitutional lawyers held that foreign private bondholders cannot collect a premium on their bonds. The bonds are payable in the United States.

And since the high court held that no loss was suffered on gold bonds in this country, the foreign bondholders also would be held to have suffered no loss.

NRA DECISION

Next on Court's List

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—The next Supreme Court test faced by the new deal is a direct ruling on the constitutionality of the NRA.

Eager for a decision before Congress shapes new NRA legislation, government attorneys, without waiting for a Federal Court of Appeals to act, asked the high court to review a decision by Judge W. I. Grubb, of the United States District Court of Alabama, holding that the National Industrial Recovery Act and the code established under it for the timber and lumber products industry are illegal.

GOLD HIGHLIGHTS PRESENT BOTH SIDES

By Universal Service

Washington, Feb. 19—Following are highlights of the majority and minority opinions by the Supreme Court on abrogation of gold clauses in public and private bonds:

MAJORITY

"Being currency, and constituting legal tender, it is entirely inadmissable to regard the gold certificates as warehouse receipts."

"Plaintiff (in Liberty Bond case) has not shown, or attempted to show, that in relation to buying power he has sustained any loss."

"When the United States, with constitutional authority, makes contracts, it has rights and incurs responsibilities similar to those of individuals who are parties to such instruments."

"We are not concerned with consequences in the sense that consequences, however serious, may excuse an invasion of constitutional right.

"We are concerned with the constitutional power of the Congress over the monetary system of the country and its attempted frustation" (private bond case).

"The (untenable) contention that these gold clauses are valid contracts and cannot be struck down proceeds upon the assumption that private parties, and states and municipalities, may make and enforce contracts which may limit that authority."

MINORITY

"These (gold certificates) were contracts to return gold left on deposit; otherwise to pay its value in the currency.

"In matters of contractual obligation, the government can not legislate so as to excuse itself."

"Congress may coin money; also it may borrow money. Neither power can be exercised so as to destroy the other; the two clauses must be so construed as to give effect to each.

"We think that in the circumstances Congress had no power to destroy the obligations of the gold clauses in private obligations. The attempt to do this was plain usurpation, arbitrary and oppressive."

"The end or objective of the joint resolution was not 'legitimate.' The real purpose was not 'to assure uniform value to the coins and currencies of the United States, but to destroy certain valuable contract rights."

"If an individual should undertake to annul or lessen his obligation by secreting or manipulating his assets with the intent to place them beyond the reach of credit, the attempt would be denounced as fraudulent."

RULING

LIBERALS ACT ON GOLD CASE

By International News Service

Washington, Feb. 19—The Supreme Court's decision on gold served as a signal in the Senate today for the release of a flood of liberal legislation, touching public works, currency, silver, taxes, labor and the bonus.

The action of the high court in holding the gold laws constitutional encouraged the authors of other liberal bills and also cleared the atmosphere on Capitol Hill.

Among the bills in course of introduction are:

A new bonus bill, by Senator Tydings (D.) of Maryland, which he introduced today.

A new labor disputes bill, by Senator Wagner (D.) of New York, outlawing company unions and giving the National Labor Relations Board real power to settle industrial controversies.

A bill by Senator Wheeler (D.) of Montana, proposing a graduated scale of federal taxes on the net incomes of corporations in excess of $3,000,000 a year. The maximum tax would be 25 per cent of all net income above $50,000,000 a year.

An amendment to the pending work relief bill, by Senator La-Follette (R.), of Wisconsin, doubling the $4,000,000,000 appropriation for public works.

An amendment to the same bill by Senator Thomas (D.), of Oklahoma, proposing mandatory expansion of the currency through issuance of silver certificates, with mandatory silver purchases.

Senators In Drive for Inflation

was much speculation over the possibility of a new legislative step.

Observers watched to see if the government would make any move to withdraw from holders of United States bonds the privilege of suing in the Court of Claims to collect damages.

Some See "Brake"

Some other Democratic legislators thought the decision might be viewed as a brake on any inflationary tendencies. In their opinion the government might be called upon to pay huge damages to holders of its gold bonds if the value of the dollar should be sliced drastically.

A firm opinion that a bondholder would find it impossible to prove damages unless Congress later orders the bonds redeemed in gold and permits a free market in that metal, was expressed by an administration spokesman.

He did not give his reasons, but some other financial observers thought there would be difficulty in proving how much of any change in the purchasing power of the dollar was due to the abrogation of the gold clause and how much to other causes.

Wall Street and commodity markets, after experiencing something of a frenzy of buying yesterday, hoped that the end to uncertainty over the gold cases would prove a tonic for the struggle back to prosperity.

Protests Abroad

There was no official comment on reports from diplomatic quarters in London that disappointed foreign holders of United States gold bonds might ask their governments to take diplomatic action.

The State Department sent a comprehensive summary of the gold decisions to its embassies so they could inform other governments.

MAYOR MANSFIELD MICHAEL F. SHANNON

Elks Ruler Warns of Reds

Communists in the United States are organizing for a revolution in October.

Schools in every big city are inculcating the red doctrine in the minds and hearts of students.

Newspapers calling for the overthrow of government are being widely circulated in the United States mails.

These disclosures were made in Boston today by Michael F. Shannon, of San Francisco, grand exalted ruler of the Elks.

They are based upon the results of a year of investigation made by the Elks into Communistic activities throughout the nation.

Elks Get Proof

Shannon, guest here of the Massachusetts Elks' Association, declared that 2,000,000 names are signed to the memorial against Communism which the Elks will present to Congress next month.

This memorial embodies the protests of the order against this menace; it contains a summary of anti-Red legislation the fraternity favors.

For the past year, the Elks' chief disclosed, rulers and executive members of different lodges throughout America, have been working toward this end.

They recognize, he said, the growing danger of Communism. They realize that if government in this country is to proceed in orderly and constitutional manner America must awaken to the Red threat.

Papers Circulated

Daily papers circulated throughout the nation are reaching hundreds of thousands of homes in which allegiance is given to the red flag, Shannon declared.

These newspapers have offices in New York, Chicago, the west and the south and are circulated through the United States mails.

These newspapers, Shannon pointed out, are printed in English, Russian, German, French, Chinese and Spanish. With no restraint they quote Lenin and Stalin holding forth "hope and promise that the Red Army might be used against exploiting classes and their states."

Shannon said:

"Such groups as the American Legion, the Knights of Columbus, the National Junior Chamber of Commerce and many women's organizations have joined with us in this effort to bring to our representatives in Congress definite knowledge about the subversive activities.

"Marx formulated the phrases used today but Stalin and Lenin have translated the creed of hate and violence into a program of action.

"At the Communist convention in Cleveland it was estimated that there are 24,500 due paying members of the party; but an executive of the group admitted that those members were only the militant and organizing members of the party.

"While I don't know so much about the spreading of Communism through teaching in the American schools, I do know that there is in the schools a spoken disrespect for American institutions and the American form of government. And that when there isn't a spoken disrespect there is an attitude of disapproval opening the way for Communistic propaganda.

"There are schools in every big city of the country which are inculcating the doctrine of the Third Internationale in the minds and the hearts of the student body."

What the Supreme Court Decision on Gold Means

By Universal Service

Every debt, every contract payable "in dollars" can be paid off in dollars of the same number as the amount of the obligation.

The value of the dollar, in gold or anything else, is fixable by Congress at its discretion.

This, in substance, is what the Supreme Court has decided in the "gold cases."

All debts, private and public, can be satisfied in such dollars as Congress, acting within its constitutional powers, fixes.

If I owe you "one hundred dollars" for a debt, wages, services, or anything else, I am obliged to give you only an equal number of dollars.

The fact that Congress has fixed the value of the dollar today, in gold, at 15 5-21 grains (9-10ths fine) whereas previously it represented 25.8 grains of gold, has nothing to do with repayment of debtor contractual obligations "in dollars."

A corporation owes "one thousand dollars" on a bond, or "sixty dollars" interest, pays in so many dollars, regardless of the amount of gold, or silver, or anything else which may be regarded by Congress as "value" of a dollar in metal or any other symbol.

The Supreme Court decisions bring these results:

1—The government does not have to pay a premium of 69 per cent on its bonds which contain the "gold clause."

2—Private corporations and individuals and others who have debts or contracts payable "in dollars," can pay these in the amounts specified, ignoring the gold in the dollar.

IN NEW BILL BY McCORMACK

By Universal Service

Washington, Feb. 19—Chairman McCormack of the House committee on un-American activities, introduced bills to fine and imprison agitators preaching treason to the armed forces and to investigate subversive propaganda literature.

McCormack bared evidence the Federal Emergency Relief Administration was one channel of distribution to the unemployed. The evidence came from Matthew Woll, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, at a recent committee hearing.

In emergency educational projects launched by the FERA to bring together unemployed teachers and students in tax supported school buildings, Woll charged the FERA recommended four revolutionary newspapers on the study curricula.

Radical Papers

The papers were the Daily Worker, (Orthodox Communist); Labor Action, (Schismatic Communists); Workers Age (Trotskyite Communist), and New Leader, (Radical Socialist).

Disputing FERA claims the papers were used to expose fallacies of Communism, Woll Declared:

"Other pamphlets were also recommended, but a large percentage of all those used presented the viewpoint of the class struggle. The study courses carried on followed the lines set forth in the subversive literature."

The committee announced the bills bear endorsement of the secretaries of War and Navy, the American Legion, American Federation of Labor, Chamber of Commerce of the United States, United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, and a host of patriotic organizations.

New Deal Gold

By Associated Press

Denver, Feb. 19—The New Deal "gold victory" in the Supreme Court was credited today by the West's metal mining industry with removing the chief obstacle—fear—to increased development in gold and silver mining.

Paris, Feb. 19—French financial circles expressed the belief today that the United States Supreme Court's gold clause decision would contribute to the stability of world currencies and price levels.

Berlin, Feb. 19—The United States Supreme Court's gold clause decision was interpreted in the German press today as an important victory for President Roosevelt.

Stockholm, Feb. 19—Prof. Gustav Cassel, noted authority on gold questions, said today the gold decision of the United States Supreme Court "has the greatest moral significance especially as regards the duty of a government to fulfill its obligations."

London, Feb. 19—Financial markets interpreted the U. S. Court decision on gold clauses in bonds as removing recent uncertainty and stabilizing the market. The stock exchange supported transatlantic issues.

Moscow, Feb. 19—The Soviet union showed no interest whatsoever in the Supreme Court's findings, the newspapers not even mentioning it.

Capetown, Feb. 19—Union of South Africa markets firmed and the government is expected to have an $11,000,000 surplus due to gold taxation.

Geneva, Feb. 19—League of Nations experts said the court decision would stimulate the stabilization of conditions in the United States and abroad.

This Is Life

ROBERT E. ROGERS

Well, all I know is what I hear on the radio—this is shortly after noon on Monday—and even that occasionally gets scrambled. Or at least it sounds so, like the first Hauptmann verdict flash.

Anyhow, I gather that the nine old men have spoken and that the attorney-general is beating it fast in the general direction of the White House to tell Franklin D. that he had said so all along and what are we going to do NOW?

Robert E. Rogers

And Mrs. Roosevelt smiles broadly for the cameras, implying that it takes a feminist in the White House to be the right kind of mascot for a Supreme Court decision.

And everybody who is really interested is glad that the decision went in the right direction, so that the eggs won't have to be unscrambled, with a lot of stock exchange activity and coercion of Congress to pass something overnight, before Threadneedle Street and the Bourse and the Reichsbank and the Pago-Pago copra and cowrie shell exchange explode into mischievous activity distinctly damaging to American credit.

All is well! The Administration is upheld.

People with Liberty Bonds smile timidly, realizing that so far as they are concerned everything is jake, but people with common or garden private bonds get what comfort they can out of being told that they haven't really lost anything—since money is really anything you want to call it, like whiskey, and that the U. S. A. hasn't the money to pay the extra sixty-nine dollars, anyway, without making a bad matter worse.

All Happy

Down in the Elysian Fields at this writing—7:30 p. m. Eastern Hades Time—the shade of John Marshall is setting up phantom drinks in large quantities, having lost all his bets to Jefferson and Andy Jackson.

Under the influence of Sangaree and Sherry Cobblers the old Democrats are forgetting the lickings they used to take from the supreme court about the bank and what not, and asking old Jack Marshall, who looks more disreputable than usual, "What price the principle of inviolable contract now?"

But Alexander Hamilton is thoughtful.

"Lucky we didn't have the radio in our day," he muses. "We had time to get around quite a bit and buy up the Continental paper dollars and the assignats and the land grant certificates before word spread that the Constitution was going to be adopted and re-establish the credit of the Confederation.

"With the radio our crowd wouldn't have had a chance to clean up. I doubt if anybody makes a cent out of this decision. Give me a muddy post road and a tired messenger on a tired horse when important news comes out of Washington. There's where the boys in New York with the inside information cash in. How about it, Rothschild?"

"I notice you have been seeing the Arliss picture," the great financier replies. "Of course, we had the semaphore telegraph, we and the Count of Monte Cristo. But I agree. This radio is too quick for bright folks."

Ben's Retort

"But you forget," remarks Ben Franklin loyally, "that nobody really knows what it all means till the newspapers get out and you can read it in full. I remember my Saturday Evening Post . . ."

"Anyway, it means the end of the Constitution" mourns John Marshall heavily, only to be brushed aside by three newcomers demanding their rightful share of drinks on the Chief Justice.

"Nonsense" they shout—A. Lincoln, and W. Wilson and T. Roosevelt—" Think for a minute what we did to the Constitution in times of stress, when quick action was needed. And it's still doing business at the old stand."

"Trust a Roosevelt to see it through," grins T. R. And twilight falls over the Elysian Fields.

But the question that is still bothering most of us is whether the twenty dollar gold piece we held out on the government—Great Aunt Millie's wedding present, it was, and the poor soul is gone and we hadn't the heart to part with it—is worth more than it was, or less, or WHAT.

The dear soul passed away believing her railroad bonds were the best securities on earth. And it never occurred to her that gold was merely an economic fiction.

Well, she has the laugh on us now! She invested in Paradise Preferred, where neither moth nor rust do corrupt, nor the Administration—but sh!—we're getting blasphemous.

Girl Bravely Awaits "Zero Hour"

Picture by Boston Evening American staff photographers

After their long, hard trip half-way across the country, Alyce Jane McHenry, the girl with the "upside down" stomach, and her mother are waiting the zero hour in Truesdale Hospital, Fall River. That hour comes when Alyce goes under the knife to have her strange condition corrected.

'HOOEY To Huey Long,' ICKES ASSERTS

By Associated Press

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—Secretary Ickes said today there had been no investigation of Postmaster General Farley by his Division of Investigation, but that a report on the James Stewart Company in which Farley formerly was interested, would be forwarded to the Senate.

Asked at his press conference if he knew who sent the bomb to Senator Long (D., La.), author of the resolution directing Ickes to produce records concerning Farley, the Interior Secretary said humorously:

"That was a hooey bomb to Huey Long."

He declined to say whether Louis R. Glavis, director of the division of investigation, had any records of the General Supply Company, in which Farley also was said by Long to be interested.

He insisted that Glavis had never investigated Farley personally, adding:

"I never investigated the Postmaster General," he said. "Do you know any reason why I should?

Alyce Happily Awaits Stomach Operation

Fall River, Feb. 19—With all the confidence in the world that her troubles are about to be ended, Alyce Jane McHenry, settled down today to wait for the man who is going to make her normal again.

The plucky little 10-year-old who came halfway across a continent to brave a surgeon's knife and right her upside down stomach was smiling today in her sunny room, on the third floor of the Truesdale Hospital.

She liked the snow. She had had a great time looking at the pretty New England cottages dotting the landscape. She could see from her window the city of Fall River and the river winding along.

By her side was "Patty Lou," a doll she got as a present when she was leaving her home in Omaha, Neb., to make this important trip.

Mother is girlish Mrs. Luella McHenry, whose hair is prematurely whitened, who tries to be as gay as her daughter, and who doesn't let down her spirits a bit when Alyce is watching.

But mother has lines on her face that years didn't bring, and there are hollowed shadows under her eyes. The smile vanishes when it isn't a necessary part of Alyce Jane's treatment.

She got a telegram today from Dr. Philemon E. Truesdale the surgeon "who is going to make Alyce well again."

The doctor, internationally known in the medical world for his skill in treating this rare "upside down stomach" disorder, is cutting short a tropical vacation to get back and help the little girl.

An upside down stomach probably doesn't sound like anything very alarming to a casual reader. But it is. It's deadly.

What really has happened to Alyce McHenry is that a hernia or rupture of the diaphragm has twisted her stomach up and around so that the vital organ, the heart, is pushed way over toward the right side.

It has constricted her left lung and is slowly forcing that into a more cramped space than nature ever intended. The intestinal tract is disordered.

Eats Ice Cream

All of those things mean bitter pain. Coughs. Shortness of breath. Nausea, deep gripping seizures when Alyce eats.

Eventually—if that open wound, the hernia, should close upon some vital vessel, as well it might — there is death.

That's what an upside stomach can be.

The little girl who has it has to eat ice cream most of the time. She is sick of it now. She wants to know:

"Maybe I could have some fish —they have lots of fish here in New England, don't they, mother?"

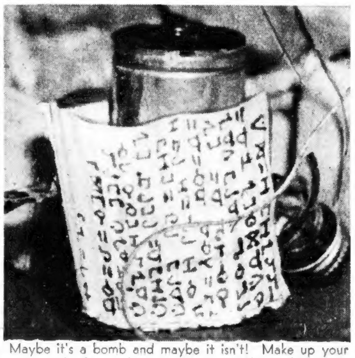
Yes, the doctors smile, encouraging. But we'll try a little cereal first. At least cereal will be a relief from ice cream.

Dr. George C. King, head of the pediatric department and Dr. Cornelius H. Hawes, assistant to Dr. Truesdale, are giving the little girl the best they have.

Alyce Jane was able to come to Truesdale because a generous Omaha family, who prefer to remain anonymous benefactors, are paying the bills.

Through newspapers there they learned of the malady that has afflicted the little girl since she was seven years old. Her mother, who works as a saleswoman in a store, couldn't finance the trip, so this family did.

Huey's 'Hooey' Bomb



Maybe it's a bomb and maybe it isn't! Make up your own mind. But anyhow, it was sent in the mail to U. S. Senator Huey "Kingfish" Long of Louisiana. And it didn't go off. Department of Justice agents are studying the contrivance. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

FUND $1,339,957 SHORT

FINAL SPURT FOR QUOTA

With less than two weeks to go, the Emergency Campaign of 1935 still lacks 1,339,957 of the required four million dollars which it is attempting to raise for 97 Boston private charities.

Next week will be the windup. Every canvasser will make a last spurt to obtain his quota of contributions.

As a punch start for the last week, a Zero Hour dinner will be given at Symphony Hall next Monday. The 1500 volunteer solicitors and their guests will be the audience.

Fannie Hurst, novelist and movie scenarist, will be the principal speaker.

Well known stage stars in Boston will be present to lend their support to the final drive.

Oscar Haussermann, general chairman of the drive, said that the money would be raised if the people of Boston could be made aware of the vital necessity of maintaining the private charities.

GEOGAN Faces Holdup TRIAL

2 OTHERS ALSO IN COURT

Plymouth, Feb. 19—Trial of two men and a woman on charges in connection with the $12,700 holdup and robbery of the Brockton city treasurer's office October 16, opened today in Superior Court.

They are Vincent M. Geogan, 28, of Cushing Hill road, Dorchester; James Barry, alias James Burke, 28, also of Dorchester, and Mrs. Celia Berkovicz, 28, of Neptune avenue, Winthrop.

In indictments, Barry and Mrs. Berkovicz are charged with being accessories after the fact to armed robbery, while Geogan is charged with armed robbery of Misses Doris Tripp and Abbie Russell, clerks in the treasurer's office, and assault with intent to murder Patrolman George A. Perkins.

Geogan and Barry were arrested in Mrs. Berkovicz's home by federal agents in search of drugs. She was arrested later as the alleged owner of the "switch car" used by the three bandits, one of whom is still unapphended.

In switching from the holdup car to the car in which they ultimately made their getaway, the three bandits, who had posed as plumbers to gain entrance to the office, left a riot gun, which is one of the exhibits.

Leonard Asks Delay In Ouster

fore the hearing opens tomorrow in the Leonard case.

"We have got to consider the case of the predecessor, and the disclosures to b emade show a shocking and astounding condition in the department as administered by Mr. Hultman.

"Mr. Leonard has had to depend, of course, on the men responsible for these shocking conditions. I am sure that tomorrow's hearing will be very interesting."

Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, counsel for Leonard, requested the week's delay.

He made the request of Attorney John P. Feeney, appointed by Governor Curley to conduct the hearing. Attorney Feeney gave him no assurance other than a promise that he would relay the request to the governor.

Attorney O'Brien said:

"It is absolutely impossible to get sufficient records together in time for the hearing tomorrow.

"Captain James T. Sheehan and his full force of personnel in the police bureau of records have worked until midnight to assemble them.

Captain Sheehan now reports it will be absolutely impossible to have them together by tomorrow. Every record can be produced if the hearing is put over for a week."

Preparations at police headquarters for the hearing, delayed the reorganization, transfers and promotions planned by the police head as a move to forestall his ouster.

Lieutenants John A. Dorsey, Timothy J. Sheehan and E. W. D. LeBlanc are reported due for the promotions. Their names and those of Lieutenants Thomas McMurray and George Mahoney were drawn from the civil service list by Leonard.

Because of the conditions in the bureau of records, there will be changes there too, it is said.

The latest explosion in that quarter is the disclosure that 1265 fingerprint records have vanished, together with certain photographs.

According to Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, counsel for the commissioner, Captain James J. Sheehan found the records missing when he reorganized the bureau in October.

In the governor's camp this information was taken as just so much more ammunition in the drive to unseat Hultman, for it was during his regime as police commissioner that all this occurred, according to indications.

To rumors that Leonard's friends would "blow the lid" if he were placed under fire, and that disclosure involving the family of an important officeholder would be forthcoming, Governor Curley paid no attention.

He stated firmly that both the Leonard and Hultman records and his request for their ouster would go to the council tomorrow. He declared:

"Their previous records throw considerable light upon their fitness for the positions they now hold. There will be no postponement or delay.

Curley and Jones Reach Job Truce

One truce was reached today in the ouster movement launched by Governor Curley.

The governor and ex-Representative John A. Jones of Peabody got together and came to a peaceful settlement of their differences which last week caused the governor to seek removal of Jones as director of the public employment service of the labor department.

HIRED TO KILL, Witness Testifies

Chicago, Feb. 19 (INS)—Walter Murphy, minor hoodlum, today testified that Irving Weitzman, head of a bakery chain, hired him to kill Eli Daiches, Chicago advertising executive, who was slain last March.

Weitzman is on trial charged with having had Daiches slain in $317,000 insurance plot.

CRIPPLED Trawlers Due HERE TONIGHT

Two Boston steam trawlers, victims of mishaps at sea, were headed back to port today, one in tow of a coastguard cutter Ossipee. Both are due to reach here early this evening.

Disabled by a cracked piston yesterday, the trawler Patrick J. O'Hara, commanded by Captain Patrick McCue, radioed for assistance and the Ossipee took her in tow 80 miles east, southeast of Boston lightship.

The steam trawler Sea, commanded by Captain Nicholas Cole, suffered her mishap last Saturday when she was in collision with a sister ship, the trawler Ocean.

The crippled trawler put into Liverpool, N. S., for temporary repairs and then started home. The Ocean arrived in Boston last night.

TRENCHARD Spurns Mystery

Atlantic City, N. J., Feb. 19 (AP)—Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, who presided at the Hauptmann trial in Flemington, has had his fill of mysteries.

Here for a rest, the aged jurist dropped into a book store for something to read. The clerk recommended a mystery thriller.

"Not on your life," said Justice Trenchard, "I've had enough of mystery to last the rest of my life."

'BAN SHOE Strikes' Is ARCHER PLAN

Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law School, chairman of the Curley committee for the protection of Massachusetts' shoe industry, today declared war on both employers and union officials who are creating trouble in the industry.

He will demand soon that both sides enter an agreement that there shall be no more strikes in this state, at least for an indefinite period, and that all disputes shall be submitted to a board of arbitration. He said:

"Union leaders are too aggressive, but likewise there are a number of inconsiderate employers. This has resulted in the forced removal of shoe plants from the Bay State."

Dean Archer called a meeting of the organization committee for Thursday at 1:30 p. m. in the Governor's council chamber. Following this meeting a series of hearings will be arranged with employers and labor leaders invited.

SEEK SCHULTZ Bond Forfeiture

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 19 (INS)—The United States government moved today to seize the $75,000 worth of Liberty bonds put up as bail for Dutch Schultz, former Bronx beer racketeer, who is charged with evasion of the federal income taxes.

Jonas Higgins, collector of internal revenue for the third district, served as a lien upon John Hahn, clerk of the federal court for the Northern New York district, directing him to seize the bonds, as well as other properties and credits allegedly owned by Schultz.

TEACHER DEAD From Poison

Bennington, Vt., Feb. 19 (AP)—Miss Ursula Rossman, 26, teacher of German at Bennington College, daughter of Frau G. Rossman of Parma, Waldorf, Esthonia, was found dead in her apartment here today.

Dr. Wilmoth Osborne said she died from poison, the dregs of which were found in a bottle near the body, but he did not announce whether it had been taken by accident or otherwise.

Harold Gray, acting president of the college, said Miss Rossman had been in ill health.

The fact that a demand for it exists proves what fools there are, among men and women, seeking for more trouble, after kind nature has set them free.

BRUNO SLEUTH Held for License

New York, Feb. 19 (INS)—Harry J. Weisenseen, who figured in early stages of the Bruno Richard Hauptmann case as "aHrry Whitney, an investigator" for Mrs. Anna Hauptmann was held in $500 bail charged with violation of a section of the general business laws of New York.

The section prohibits any person from acting as a private detective or investigator for pay without first obtaining a license.

NRA MESSAGE Due Tomorrow

The White House said the message proposing a revised national recovery administration probably will go to Congress tomorrow.

1000 SHOE Pickets Routed IN LOWELL

Lowell, Feb. 19—Two youths were arrested when police routed 1000 pickets today in a demonstration against the Chris Laganas Shoe Company in Jackson street.

James Chicklis, 24, of Broadway, and Harvey Saucier, 20, of Aiken street, were charged with intimidation of workers and disturbing the peace.

Joseph Cratton of Lawrence, an organizer for the United Shoe & Leather Workers' Union, was taken to police headquarters and questioned at length on his activities. No charge was placed against him.

In five other shoe factories, those of the Chelmsford, Economy, Federal, Lowell and Charles Shoe companies, workers walked out on a "sympathy holiday" in protest against refusal of the Laganas company to recognize the union.

BAD CHECKS Bring Jail Term

Providence, R. I., Feb. 19 (AP)—Albert C. Engler of Boston today was sentenced to six months in jail when he appeared before the sixth district court here on a charge of mulcting local manufacturing jewelers out of about $2500 by means of worthless checks. Engler appealed.

The charge was brought in 1932, and Engler was brought back here after serving a 29-month sentence in Massachusetts.

REILLY TO ACT In Boston Case

Attorney Edward J. Reilly, of Brooklyn, head of the staff of defense counsel for Bruno Hauptmann, will appear here tomorrow as counsel for several defendants in the so-called stock fraud case in Federal court.

Kaminski Prays As He Dies in Chair

With a prayer on his lips, Alexander Kaminski, 25, slayer of a Springfield jail guard, went to the electric chair a few moments after midnight this morning.

He was calm and was murmuring:

"Jesus, Mary and Joseph, I give you my heart and soul . . .

"Jesus, Mary and Joseph, assist me in my hour of agony . . .

"Jesus, Mary and Joseph, may I breathe forth my soul in peace to three . . ."

Over and over again the youth repeated this trilogy of prayers that he learned too late and he took the last long walk with the prison chaplain, the Rev. Ralph W. Farrell, by his side.

He leaned on no one's arm. He wasn't assisted into the electric chair. He sat there, waiting and praying. They adjusted the mask and electrodes.

Then Executioner Robert G. Elliott, who is going to throw the switch for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, performed his office.

Four shocks twisted through Kaminski's body.

The first was at 12.06. It was 2000 volts, 12 amperes. The second—1900 volts, 10 amperes, was at 12.07. The third—1950 volts, 10 amperes, came at 12.08. A minute later, the fourth, 1350 volts, 7 amperes, ended it.

At 12.09.04 Alexander Kaminski was pronounced dead.

Leaves Legacies

Outside of the prison, while Kaminski was going to his death a heavy guard, two sergeants and 10 patrolmen kept streets clear for three blocks around the hospital.

These were unusual precautions, but officials recalled that Kaminski's brother, John, bombed a Springfield courtroom when Alexander was on trial.

To that brother John, now serving 23½ to 25 years in state prison, Kaminski left two legacies. One was a letter, the other was $2.50.

The letter read:

"I'm ready to go. I am in good spirits, and I want you to be.

"We will be together soon, father and mother, sister and brother. There is no such thing as the vacant chair.

"Keep good courage, and goodbye. I love you, Johnny."

To Paul Wargo, the life prisoner who went through many a crime with the now dead man, Kaminski left a $2.50 legacy too. He directed that a box of 25 cigars be bought with the money and given to his "pal."

To the chaplain, Father Farrell, Kaminski left a religious picture "The Smiling Virgin" which some sympathizer—a Dorchester boy—had sent him while in was in the death house.

WARNS OF REDS Working in Mexico

The United States should interfere with religious persecution in Mexico to protect herself from contact with a cesspool of Communism, according to Martin H. Carmody.

The supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus, at a banquet at the Hotel Statler, said that Communistic teachings were seeping in over the border.

He then announced that Governor Curley, who also spoke, had accepted the chairmanship in this area of the drive for new members in the Knights of Columbus.

Pinochle Shares Honors With Bridge in Newest Card Playing Vogue

LILY PONS, world-famous coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, frequently plays pinochle on trains between cities where she sings. "Pinochle is a fascinating game, worthy of any bridge player's best talents," she says. "In fact, playing pinochle can help to improve one's bridge strategy."

P. Hal Sims, America's foremost authority on contract, pinochle and other card games, says pinochle is sweeping the country; thousands of bridge fans now playing both games.

The new vogue in card-playing that's sweeping the country is—pinochle! All over the country thousands have taken it up. Many bridge fans now play both games, according to P. Hal Sims, noted bridge expert.

Pinochle tournaments now in progress under Mr. Sims' direction in this city and fifteen others give some hint of the widespread popularity of the game. The winners of these tournaments will meet in New York March 11-18.

Pinochle appeals to almost everyone. It's easy to learn. Two, three or four people can play it. For beginners and experts, a convenient pamphlet, "Official Pinochle Rules" by P. Hal Sims, is now included with every pinochle pack of U. S. Playing Cards. The United States Playing Card Company, Cincinnati, Ohio.

WOMEN Brave Under NAZI AXE

BEHEAD BOTH IN 6 MINUTES

Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press

Berlin, Feb. 19—Benita von Falkenhayn and Renate von Natzmer went to the executioner's block in Ploetzense prison yesterday with more outward calm and bravery than any men within the memory of prison authorities.

Reliable description of their beheading, kept secret by the government, was given to the Associated Press today by a man who witnessed every step of the procedure.

This is his story:

The execution was performed before dawn within the courtyard of the grim old prison. The night was pitch black, but the scene was illuminated with floodlights.

Words of Doom

The execution of both women only took six minutes.

"Frau von Falkenhayn," said the witness, "was the first to be executed. When she was led into the lights that illuminated the courtyard, she walked first to the improvised stand for the jury which was witnessing the affair.

"Her hands were chained on her back. She stood and heard once more the verdict of death read aloud by the prosecutor.

"Bowing before a crucifix on a table, dimly lit by tall candles, the prosecutor surrendered Frau von Falkenhayn to the executioner with the words:

"'Executioner, do you duty.'

The executioner was August Griebler of Magdeburg, 67, and was aided by three assistants.

As soon as her head was severed from her body, Frau Von Falkenhayn's corpse was placed in a narrow black coffin.

Frau Von Natzer, one of Berlin's beauties, met her death likewise without a sign of emotion, according to the informant. He described her as "an extremely good looking person about 35 years old."

Wine on Last Night

"What impressed us most of the two women's behavior during their last minutes of life," he said, "was that neither of them murmured a word."

The two women spent Sunday night and early Monday drinking wine and coffee and smoking "uncountable expensive cigarettes."

The condemned in German prisons are allowed to spend 100 marks—about $4—in making their last hours pleasant.

"They cannot get drunk, however," said the informant, "because there are regulations which provide that their beverages shall not contain more than 18 per cent alcohol."

MAN DIES In Taunton BLAZE

Taunton, Feb. 19—One man died, three persons were trapped and rescued by firemen today as flames roared through a three-story building in Whitten street, early today.

Lagier Milot, 45, of Washington street, whose presence in the place none could explain, was suffocated a few feet from the heater in the basement where the fire is believed to have started.

A milk man saw the flames and gave the alarm. In their beds were Victor LaFrance, his wife, Marie, and a son, Victor, Jr., 16, occupants of the second floor.

The fire blocked exists to the second floor before the LaFrances were aroused.

Firemen, using a water screen, finally battled their way up the rear stairs, broke down the door of the LaFrance apartment and then carried the trio out.

All three of the rescued were partially overcome by smoke.

MELLON Wins First TAX SKIRMISH

By International News Service

Pittsburgh, Feb. 19—Andrew W. Mellon, multi-millionaire financier, emerged victorious today in his first clash with the federal government which seeks $3,075,103 in taxes and penaltie son his 1931 income.

Supboenas ordering two Mellon enterprises—the Union Trust Company and the Mellon National Bank—to produce their books at the hearings before the U. S. Board of Tax Appeals were ordered quashed.

Ernest H. Van Fossan, chairman of the board, said members "felt the subpoenas are too broad and were improperly issued."

However, the government can apply for other subpoenas.

The government sought records of the banking institutions to substantiate allegations that the former Secretary of the Treasury used the banks, especially the Union Trust Company, as a clearing house for manyq sales designe d to avoid taxes.

LODGE MAKES Attack on NRA

The people "cannot live on the boastful oratory of a leather-lunged self-advertiser," according to Representative Henry Cabot Lodge in a bitter attack on the Democratic party and the NRA.

He told a meeting of the Essex County Women's Republican club that the NRA was unfair, and was driving industry out of Massachusetts.

GUNS Guard Over MILLENS

SHOOT TO KILL ORDER IN PIT

New precautions against escape are being taken as the slayers await the date of their doom to be set by the court.

Two sub-machine guns have been added to the equipment of the guards in the rotunda above the pit cells where the three are confined.

For the first time since the trial last spring, the six men on guard in the pit, in three eight-hour shifts of two each, have been given guns.

No more chances are being taken and shoot-to-kill orders have been issued.

No new escape plot has been discovered, but the convicted prisoners have heard that the state supreme court denied their appeal.

They are now awaiting word from Judge Nelson P. Brown regarding the date of sentence.

The pit guards had not been armed since the night last May when Irving Millen battled his two guards for their guns.

Guns Cover Pit

In the event of a new outbreak in the pit, the rotunda guards would command the pit with the machine guns, behind the barred door to which nobody in the pit has a key.

Murton Millen is the only one of the three in good physical condition. He is keeping in condition by grotesque daily exercises, grasping the top bars on his cell door and swinging across the door from bar to bar, monkey fashion.

Faber has displayed little more animation than during his trial, when he sat like a dead man through nine weeks of testimony. The privilege of a daily walk up and down the pit corridor has been restored to the trio since the last attempted break, but Faber often declines, preferring to remain on his cot.

Irving Millen has grown thin and lost much strength.

HALF DROP OUT IN LIVELY PLAY

By the PINOCHLE TOURNAMENT EDITOR

Three hundred and fifty pinochle enthusiasts, less than a handful of them women, qualified in yesterday's first round in the Boston Evening American's tournament to discover Boston's Pinochle King or Queen.

The winner of this newspaper's city-wide pinochle tournament will receive $300 and the opportunity to make an all-expenses-paid trip to New York to compete for the national pinochle championship and $1000 with 14 others at the Waldorf-Astoria.

While similar tournaments were taking place in other cities throughout the country, more than 700 players—214 at the afternoon session and close to 500 at the evening session—assembled yesterday in the Hotel Bradford ballroom for the opening play.

Only 3 Girls

Largely representative of the dignified generation and less deadly sex, they played with an intentness and good humor that won commendation from Tournament Managers Lombard Williams and Rosamond Vahey, who have won their service stripes, either directing or winning championships in numerous New England bridge tournaments.

The evening session brought out three young women and about 25 women of more mature years, while the "home girls" at the afternoon session numbered less than a dozen. A man's game, by cracky.

Another entrant, a woman of pleasant proportions and a generous smile, had driven down from upper Maine to try for the championship. She's been playing pinochle for 50 years, she said, and she thinks she's pretty good.

The only kibitzer at yesterday's play, Mark Cannold, 65 Clarendon street, left the afternoon session muttering that he "was bringing a better player tonight—this fellow tonight listens to me."

It seems that Joseph Kileski, 199 Pleasant street, Brookline, holding a 40 and 80 meld and with four cards left to draw, disregarded "Kibetzer" Cannold's sage advice and melded a 40 instead of an 80.

"He wouldn't take my advice and meld an 80," said Mr. Cannold, disgustedly, "thinking he'd get aces in draw. Now, the fellow I'm bringing here tonight, he's good, he is—he does what I tell 'im."

Carl E. Darlson, Jr., 8 Herbert street, West Somerville, qualified as the youngest player. He is 18, but he plays like a doughty veteran.

The next round will be played on February 28, a week from Thursday, with the winners of three out of five games qualifying for the third round on March 2.

In the March 2 play, a player must win four out of seven games to enter the final round on March 6.

In addition to the $300 prize for Boston's Pinochle King or Queen, there will be a second and third prize of $100 each and 50 additional prizes of autographed copies of Sims' "Pinochle Pointers" for those scoring next highest.

RUPTURE
Troubles

Representatives of Wm. S. Rice, Adams, N. Y., originator of the Rice Method for the self treatment of rupture at home, will be at the Touraine Hotel, Boylston and Tremont Sts., Boston, Mass., Thurs., Fri. and Sat., Feb. 21, 22 and 23, to give a personal and free trial of his method to all sufferers who want to end rupture trouble and truss wearing.

No matter how bad the rupture, how long you have had it or how hard to hold; no matter how many kinds of trusses you have worn, let nothing prevent you from getting this FREE TRIAL. Whether you are tall and thin, short and stout, have a large abdomen, whether you think you are past help or have a rupture as large as your fists, this marvelous Method will so control and keep it up inside as to surprise you. It will so restore the parts where the rupture comes through that soon you will be as free to work at any occupation as though you had never been ruptured.

The trial will be absolutely complete and thorough without a penny of cost.

You owe it to your own personal comfort and safety not to miss this great free demonstration. It is a real opportunity to learn how you may be done with chafing trusses and the danger, suffering and trouble your rupture has caused.

The hours are 9 to 12 a. m., 2 to 5 p. m. and evenings 7 to 9. Remember the dates and place, Touraine Hotel, Boston, Mass.

Done With Mirror—But It's Okay!

Of course, this pose before a mirror wouldn't be advisable if the girl pinochle player, Eva M. Dean of 1254 Commonwealth avenue, were really holding this hand in actual competition in the Boston Evening American's big pinochle tournament for a first prize of $300—and a trip to New York. But the mirror is just the cameraman's idea. It won't be there when Miss Dean sits down at table in the Hotel Bradford, confronted by a real opponent. She's a promising entrant. And she may win. PUPILS MUST Behave After Hours

The Medford school committee today instructed Superintendent of Schools J. Stephens Kadesch to take immediate steps to improve the behavior of pupils after school hours.

Miss May Songster of the committee, said scores of complaints had been received of actions on the streets, buses, trolleys, public halls and other places. She asserted that two public gatherings had been disrupted by pupils and an El bus nearly wrecked.

Dope Pedlar Branded Enemy No. 1 by Rep. Ward

The dope pedlar is the real Public Enemy No. 1 of America, Representative Michael H. Ward of Roxbury declared today.

In a statement calling upon the people of Massachusetts to urge their representatives in the House and Senate to support House Bill 352 which is intended to minimize the illegal sale of narcotics, Ward said:

"The dope pedlar is the creator of crime here in Massachusetts and throughout the United States.

"He is the real murderer, the real thief, the real Public Enemy No. 1 because it is he who robs an individual of his soul by supplying the drugs which make him a slave to his basest passions.

"The dope addict is a burden to himself and a menace to his fellow man.

"He is sick mentally and physically and when unable to find funds with which to purchase narcotics is capable of any crime.

"To the pedlar can be charged the misfortune of the addict and the responsibility for his crimes.

"House Bill 352 is intended to protect the public from narcotic dispensers.

"Under the terms of this bill, the convicted pedlar would be liable to a fine of $1,000 or imprisonment in the House of Correction for a period of not more than two and one-half years, and for any subsequent offense a fine of not more than $5,000 or imprisonment in the State Prison for not more than five years."

ABC to Move

The ABC Commission will move from its present quarters in the State House as soon as space can be found elsewhere. Additional space is required by the state banking department and for that reason the move is made necessary.

EX-OFFICER HELD In Cleaver Attack

Former Patrolman Edward D. Harrington, Jr., of Harris street, Malden, today was held in $1000 for the grand jury by Judge Elbridge D. Davis in Malden court, charged with attack on his aged father with a meat cleaver last week.

BEAUTY Smiles at SLAYER

KENNAMER'S DEFENSE ENDS

Courtroom, Pawnee, Okla., Feb. 19—Virginia Wilcox, daughter of a Tulsa oil multi-millionaire, leaned from the front row of spectators' seats to smile at young Phil Kennamer when his trial for the killing of John Gorrell was resumed this morning.

Miss Wilcox, whom Phil testified he loved so much he killed Gorrell when the Kansas City dental college student plotted to kidnap her, was surrounded by a bevy of Tulsa Junior Leaguers, all fashionably dressed.

The state opened rebuttal testimony today in an effort to break down the self-defense, insanity and killing-to-protect story of the romantic poseur.

ELEVATOR Strikers Sign 6-MONTH PACT

By International News Service

New York, Feb. 19—The elevator strike ended at least temporarily—today as Mayor La Guardia forced a peace pact from employers and employes.

The end came after eighteen and one-half hours of bitter controversy during which sporadic waves of building service strikes threatened to spread and cripple service in many New York skyscrapers.

Under terms of the agreement, during the six months following March 1, the arbitration board is to consider recommendations for a reasonable minimum wage for employes in office, loft and apartment buildings as a basis for a further agreement.

WOMAN TWICE Escapes Death

Mrs. Annie E. Russell, 58, an unemployed widow of Derby street, West Newton, was saved from death for the second time in two months, at her home today.

Mrs. Russell was found unconscious in the gas-filled kitchen. Police and gas employes revived her and took her to Newton Hospital.

Two months ago she was rescued from Charles River. It was reported she had slipped on ice and fell into the river.

CHELSEA PAY May Be Restored

Approximately 750 Chelsea city employes will have 5 per cent of their pay cut restored if the Board of Aldermen, as expected, passes the budget as prepared by Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley.

The budget total is $2,566,766, about $3800 more than expenditures last year.

Medford Budget

Mayor John J. Irwin has called a special meeting of the Medford aldermen for tonight, when he will submit the annual budget recommending appropriations of approximately $3,000,000. Mayor Irwin hopes to borrow $250,000 on tax titles held by the city, which will help to keep the city's tax rate down.

They were headliners in the club's second annual production.

3 HELD IN Auto Attack ON OFFICER

Three Dorchester youths were held on charges of trying to kill a policeman today after a chase in which police fired several shots.

Police charged William Connolly, 21, John J. Johnson, 20, both of Dorchester avenue, and Donald Greenough, 18, of Park street, injured Patrolman Charles White on the legs when their car swerved toward him.

In Dorchester court they were held in $10,500 each for hearing.

With George M. Anthony, 20, of Savin Hill avenue, Dorchester, they were held for Back Bay police on charges that they stole the auto in that section.

Police said they expect to make a fifth arrest in what they termed a gang of youthful automobile thieves.

3-YEAR SILENCE Means Wife Sues

Salem, Feb. 19—A husband's oath that he would never speak to his wife again, which he kept for three years, was attested to in probate court today by Mrs. Anna M. Dobson of Bloomfield street, Lynn, in her uncontested suit against Irving M. Dobson for divorce. The case was taken under advisement.

The couple were wed February 7, 1616, and at that time, Mrs. Dobson said, her husband was a deacon in the Nazarene church. Four years ago, she testified, he gave up his faith and has been a changed man ever since.

Curley Lauds Jordan's Tradition

A musical show, "Streamlines," and an address by Governor Curley topped the second annual ball program of the Jordan Marsh Sports Association at the Hotel Statler.

Governor Curley termed the Jordan Marsh Company an institution which for its character and service has won the good will of the entire state.

The name of Eben Jordan was a thing "to conjure with" for half a century, he said and the tradition he established has been carried on by the Mitton family.

GARMENT Strike Threatened

Threat of a general garment strike hovered over that industry in Boston today.

According to some manufacturers, the strike will be called because 25 manufacturers have refused to renew the union agreement that expired last Friday.

A Kneeland street shop owner indicated that he and a score of his business associates made a study of union dues and maintained that employes were paying too much to maintain their standing.

Vincent Club Members Attend Tryouts

By BETTY ALDEN

THE AUTHOR OF "PETTICOAT FEVER" certainly did not have the Vincent Club rehearsals in mind when he wrote the entertaining farce in which Dennis King appeared last evening at the Plymouth . . . To be sure, there were no petticoats in that Vincent Club gathering of modern lassies, but the malady which possessed the hero of the play would have been quickly dispelled by the presence of so much charming femininity . . .

MISS REBEKAH HOBBS

Polly Binney, in a coral brocaded satin dress, and Ramelle Cochrane were among the younger set at the theater who were still chuckling at the antics of the handsome Mr. King when they hurried out of the lobby in search of taxis . . . Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller found the play amusing and entertaining, as did Mrs. Carl Dreyfus, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew N. Winslow, Jr., Mrs. Wilbur Higgins, Mrs. Van Ness Bates, whose apple green velvet wrap enhanced the reddish tone of her hair . . .

* * *

Vincent Tryouts

Shorts, rompers, overalls . . . pink, red, green, yellow . . . bare feet, stocking feet, ballet slippers, tap shoes, silver evening slippers . . . all part of the panorama in the Princess Ballroom of the Somerset Hotel yesterday morning as more than 100 girls were put through their paces at the tryouts for the Vincent Ventures of 1935.

Miss Vincent Club must have set her alarm clock for very early duty for she arrived at the Somerset promptly at 9:30 to hear the following directions about rehearsals as read by Mrs. Atherton Loring, Jr. . . . first, Miss Vincent Club must bring her shorts to rehearsal under her arm as she must not venture out before the public gaze unless modestly clothed in a skirt . . . second, she must have her measurements put on file for her costumes . . . third, her dues for being in the show are $10 . . . furthermore, she is urged to arrive as promptly every day, and to have lunch at the Somerset in return for the use of the ballroom for rehearsals, gratis . . . and lastly, she receives a gentle warning to be careful of disposing of cigarette stubs . . .

Now Miss Vincent Club was ready to line up in front of Coach John E. Hall, who for several years has created the famous Vincent Drill out of just such a confusion of sizes, shapes and talents as stood before him yesterday . . . She tapped, waved her arms and kicked until Mrs. Gardiner Fiske's voice announced that before luncheon she would like to report the winners in the contest for soliciting advertising for the program of the show.

* * *

Awarded Advertising Prizes

FROM THEN ON THERE were cheers and congratulations for Eleanor Swift and Pat Farley, winners of first prizes for signing the most contracts for ads, and for Mrs. J. Brooks Fenno, Jr., and Jean Tuckerman whose time and efforts were rewarded by receiving second and third awards . . .

Louise Harding, who was reported to be still out trying to convince one stern business man to close a contract, received honorable mention along with Marian McKean, Celina Robbins, Peggy Burnett, Hope Blanchard, Natalie Folsom and Caroline Oveson . . .

Mrs. William Elwell, Mrs. Shaw Sprague and Mrs. Terry Collens headed the teams which netted the best results in the contest . . .

Among the debutantes of this season who will positively do honor to the name of the Vincent Club when they appear before the footlights on March 14, 15 and 16 at the Wilbur Theater will be Polly Wardwell, Tasha Tudor, Alice Spaulding, Persis Mason, Sue Crocker, Jessie Fay, May Bryant, Doris Foote, Jane Whitney and Louise Whittemore . . .

After everyone had gone upstairs to luncheon, Maria Ducey coaxed the pianist to play while she practised a solo dancing number, destined to be presented before Mr. Hall for approval later in the day . . .

* * *

Group Kept Busy All Day

LEST YOU SHOULD think that only aspirants for parts in the cast were in that ballroom yesterday we mention some of the many lookers-on . . . Jeanne Lee Sargeant, knitting industriously, sat on the side lines all morning . . . Mrs. Francis A. Harding, Jr., Mrs. Richard Thompson, Mrs. Frederic Tudor and Mrs. Thomas Whiteside all surveyed the kickers and tappers with experienced eyes . . .

Bachrach Photo
Mrs. Hamilton Osgood, 2d

Ascertaining the individual measurements of each girl in the show was the duty of Mrs. William C. Gray, Mrs. Charles B. Barnes, Jr., and Mrs. Hamilton Osgood 2d, all of whom were bedecked with the familiar yellow tape measures around their necks . . .

Alice Burrage arrayed in navy blue overalls, Peggy Hardwick in red and white striped shorts and shirt, the two Byrons knitting while they relaxed from the routines, Marion Leeson and Eleanor Williams avoiding a spill, Edith Parker and Harriet Moseley helping to direct the doings . . . a few odd impressions of the morning . . .

VINCENT CLUB Members Busy With Play Plans

MRS. WILLIAM C. GRAY (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer) MISS BETTY PAYSON

THERE IS MUCH MORE to producing a Vincent Club play than rehearsing and dancing and music. There are many details of staging, lighting, and costuming which must be attended to. Here are Mrs. William C. Gray and Miss Betty Payson busily engaged in making a file of the measurements of all the girls in the cast.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

You can now make at home a better gray hair remedy than you can buy by following this simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. Barbo imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, making it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

Dance Planned

MR. AND MRS. FREDERICK H. HERTRICH of Flushing, Mich., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Margaret, to Mr. James Faulkner Preston, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Faulkner Preston of Portland, Me.

Miss Hertrich will graduate in June from the University of Michigan. Mr. Preston was graduated from Harvard with the class of 1932, and prepared at Milton Academy. In June he will receive his degree at the University of Michigan Law School.

Guide to New Books

BY MILES ALDEN

JUNGLE—Translated from the Portuguese of Ferreira De Castro by Charles Duff—Viking Press.

Neither the author nor his publishers have elected to say whether this tale of Amazon rubber tappers is based on the writer's own experiences or not. But the former may well be the case. The incidents of the story often trail off into nothingness as incidents do in real life, rather than being built up to a fictional climax.

This must not be interpreted to mean that "Jungle" is not a good story. It is—a very superior story of these isolated men working their way back and forth between their trees and the company warehouse in the Amazon country.

But the book will impress more readers by its obviously true picture of the jungle, a picture painted by a man who has spent years in that hinterland and not one who has paid it a mere flying visit for the purpose of writing a book.

Even more important for many will be the psychological study of the young Portuguese monarchist who is exiled to this wilderness, where his own character is revealed to him, but where it is not changed. He goes in a bit of a snob, and for all his work and sweat, he comes out a bit of a snob.

Back to the days of the Napoleonic wars, when England evicted the Highlanders from their glens, the author has gone for his setting in this finely executed novel of Scotland.

No less shameful than the treatment of racial minorities by other despots through the long ages was that of the Highland clearance to make way for sheep; the burning of their poor houses, the confiscation of their stock and the destruction of their crops.

With pipes skirling, kilts swinging and high promises of England in their ears, most of the men had marched away to war, but only one Colin came back, the sole survivor—to find desolation and ruin and his people scattered in misery.

"Highland Night" is the story of one small community in the great area ravished by the English eviction, and the author's picture does not add at all to the glory of England in the past.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX GIVES ADVICE ON LOVE

Wife Perks Up When Old Beau Returns

NOTHING is so flattering to a woman—even the best of them—as to have an old beau come back.

It's like looking in the glass and finding the crow's feet have vanished.

Don't misunderstand. It's all these things, and more, to the most estimable of matrons; ladies who, like Caesar's wife, are above suspicion. The reason—it restores confidence.

Perhaps, in the struggle for the ever more elusive dollar, it has been a long time since friend husband noticed how pretty and attractive the lady wife still is, and that her wit has not grown rusty with the years.

So the fact that the old beau looked her up, and found her sufficiently interesting to see her again, and even include her husband in the celebration, is as rain in the desert. This husband's letter tells the story:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"When Anne married me she knew we would have to scrimp along because my salary was painfully small. I really didn't want to get married, as things were, but Anne said she was willing to take a chance, and so we were married.

"We have no money for shows, amusements or the luxuries of life. I'm an assistant bookkeeper, and my wife does the work in a small apartment. It's dull, but not too heavy. Lately an old sweetheart of hers turned up, and he plays the prince.

"I didn't mind going to the theater with them once or twice, when my wife prepared dinner for all of us in advance, but now I'm thoroughly sick of accepting favors from this fellow. If we go anywhere his car (a good one) is always waiting. If he takes us to a theater, the seats are the best. And it's the same with restaurants.

"I can see that my wife is getting ashamed of our poverty and lately I've refused to go out with Anne's old flame. She has said: 'Very well; if you don't want to go out with him, I do. It's necessary for me to have a little diversion occasionally.'

"Now don't imagine there is anything between these two. They are just good pals. But I have too much pride to accept treats and favors I cannot return. POOR MAN."

The situation you describe will require the utmost tact to handle. If the old flame is in town for a short time, it will be comparatively easy to manage, but if he has taken up a permanent residence in your city, it's "walking on eggs" for all three of you.

Naturally your pride is hurt by having an old beau of your wife's play the prince. You'll do well to introduce a pretty girl into these parties and make them foursomes—not to make your wife jealous, or for any farce comedy business like that, but to have the old beau see some other attractive girl.

Your wife may not take kindly to this arrangement at first, but it's better all round that he doesn't concentrate on a married lady.

And if you and your wife provide the evening meal, before the old flame takes you to the theater, that certainly helps to discharge the obligations.

If Mothers Only Knew

Thousands of Children Suffer from Worms, and Their Mothers do not know what the trouble is.

Signs of Worms are: Constipation, deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, offensive breath, hard and full stomach with pains, pale face, eyes heavy, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, etc.

Mrs. E. W. Stephan, 31 Kenberma Road, Dorchester, Mass., wrote:—"My little girl's freedom from children's diseases, colds, constipation, etc., I attribute in a large measure to the use of Dr. True's Elixir."

Dr. True's Elixir
Laxative Worm Expeller

A pure herb medicine, not a harsh stimulator: natural relief from constipation.

Only One Happiness!

Nell Brinkley Says:

SINCE the first cave-woman thought up making a home in a cave, and showing her mate that THAT was the proper way to live—one man for one woman, in a place that belonged to them alone—marriage and the love that began it and should go with it, has been the best happiness that man and woman can find.

It occupies young thoughts, fills young heads with dreams and aspirations, balances young activities, is the natural and only REAL happiness. You and I may have found out what is real happiness, being older than the young person that reads this. But HE or SHE is wondering, perhaps with some cynic to put in a doubtful note. NEVER DOUBT it!

Marriage, with love, is the best!

Learn Intelligent Discarding

In the hand below West defeated a doubled three notrump contract not by any particular bit of brilliancy but merely by careful and intelligent discarding.

West, Dealer.

North:
♠ A 7 6
♡ 8 7
◇ 4 3
♣ A Q J 9 4 2

West:
♠ Q 8 3 2
♡ A Q 5
◇ A K Q 10 6
♣ 7

East:
♠ J 10 5 4
♡ 9 4 3 2
◇ 5 2
♣ 10 6 5

South:
♠ K 9
♡ K J 10 6
◇ J 9 8 7
♣ K 8 3

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	2 ♣	Pass	2 N T
Pass	3 N T	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the diamond Ace and then saw no harm in continuing with another round of that suit.

However, deciding that to continue the suit would set up a trick for the declarer, West made the safest possible shift—the club.

West prepared himself for the unpleasant task of discarding on the club suit. Declarer ran five club tricks, discarding two hearts from his own hand.

West of course realized that to defeat the contract he had to count on his partner for assistance in stopping the spade suit.

West therefore temporized and for his first four discards chose two small spades, a small heart and a small diamond.

Declarer abandoned the club suit for a minute and led a low spade to his King and another low spade to the Ace in dummy, dropping West's Queen, but East held stopping cards in the suit.

The last club was then led and North had to discard before West. He chose a diamond and West, discarding after him, did not do the same, but just the opposite.

He kept for his last three cards the Queen and ten of diamonds which he knew were both good, and the heart Ace.

What the declarer did at this point was immaterial. Marking the heart Ace in the West hand, South led a diamond, hoping that he had noticed the discards incorrectly and that West would have to come to him in hearts for the last trick.

However, West claimed the balance and the contract was defeated one trick.

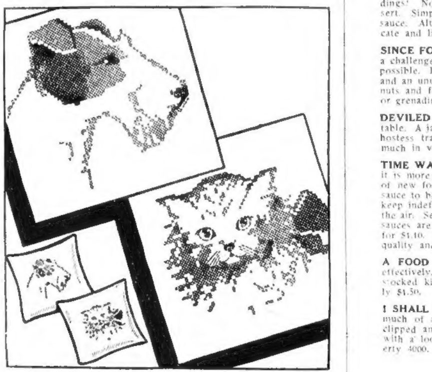
Cross Stitch Pets



CROSS STITCH DOG AND CAT PATTERN 937

Who could resist this appealing kitten and droll wire-haired puppy?

The crosses are 8 to the inch and so are easy to embroider. The heads make a charming pair of pictures or pillows; they are a subject that is most popular today. Do them in wool or silk on a light or dark background.

Pattern 937 comes to you with a transfer pattern of a dog's head 7x7¼ inches and a cat's head 5¾x7 inches; material requirements; illustrations of all stitches needed; a color key.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) for this pattern to Boston Evening American, Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Holiday Menu

Cherries Will Play Big Role in Washington Birthday Menus

By MARTHA LEE

All hostesses seek new ideas for entertaining to offset the use of time-worn menus. But, of course, too great a variation is not to be thought of in connection with certain holidays. Cherries must play an important part in celebrating Washington's Birthday—in fruit cups, salads and desserts.

Why not make the guests do their share in carrying out the spirit of the day by having a fancy dress ball. This is not too difficult today for fancy dress and decorations are much easier to arrange than they used to be, particularly this year when this style of dress is so popular.

The crinolines and lace frills for the ladies and high stocks for the men may be simulated with paper suggestions. Receive the guests by candle light and have this the only light used throughout the house. Have a dinner with dancing between courses.

Cream of Beet Soup
Olives Celery Curls
Roast Chicken
Black Walnut and Marshmallow Yams
String Beans
Tomato Ring with Sliced Cucumber
Spoon Bread
Cherry Ice
Pound Cake Cut in Hatchet Shapes and Iced with Red
Coffee

CREAM OF BEEF SOUP

- 4 tablespoons butter
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1 1-3 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- ½ teaspoon prepared mustard
- 2 teaspoons grated onion
- 2 cups canned beet juice
- ¾ cup canned beet pulp

Make a white sauce of the first seven ingredients. Add the beet juice and pulp, which has been put through a grinder and let it cook in a double boiler for 20 minutes. One teaspoon of lemon juice may be added just before serving if desired. This recipe serves eight.

BLACK WALNUT AND MARSHMALLOW YAMS

- 6 large yams
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1 tablespoon cooking sherry
- ½ cup rich milk or cream
- 2-3 cup chopped black walnuts

Boil the yams with skin on, then peel and mash. Add butter, sugar, salt, sherry and milk or cream, and beat until light and fluffy. Add walnuts and pile into a buttered casserole. Bake five minutes in a moderate, 375 deg. F., oven. Then cover top with marshmallows, placing them about one inch apart. Return to oven until marshmallows have puffed up and turned a golden brown. Serve right from casserole. Serves eight.

Tomato Bouillon
(Paprika Whipped Cream)
Sweetbread and Almond Croquettes
Martinique Potatoes
Grapefruit and Orange Salad
Individual Cherry Tarts
Coffee
Cherry Bonbons
Salted Pistachio Nuts

SWEETBREAD AND ALMOND CROQUETTES

One set of sweetbreads for six people is the rule for making the croquettes. These are washed and soaked most carefully, then cooked for 20 minutes in water to which one tablespoon vinegar has been added for each quart. Then they are cut into inch squares. These small pieces are mixed with a quarter pound of blanched almonds, split lengthwise, and ¾ cup of rich cream sauce, well seasoned and containing two tablespoons of lemon juice. The mixture is chilled and shaped in croquettes, then dipped in melted butter, cracker crumbs and fried in deep, hot lard until golden brown.

MEALS IN A JIFFY?

EVERY EFFICIENTLY run home should have several menus tucked away in the recipe file that can be prepared in thirty minutes, for those occasions that arise when meals must be hurried. We suggested several at our Cooking School last week and will be glad to send a copy on request.

WATCH MAKING and repairing is a delicate art. The handling of foreign clocks particularly requires an expert knowledge and years of experience. We shall be glad to tell you of a watch maker who gives special attention to repairing French and English clocks.

A QUICK COFFEE in liquid form can be used not only to make a full-flavored cup of coffee, but to use as a coffee flavoring for puddings, custards, frostings, etc. This is a concentrated syrup extracted from the coffee bean and will make a cup of coffee by simply adding boiling water to 1½ tsps. of the syrup. Comes in a jar that sells for 25c. Makes about twenty-five cups of coffee.

NEW KITCHEN MODEL of a Silex coffee maker, six or eight-cup size, now sells for $2.95. This new model is made of pyrex glass and has a bakelite handle which resists heat. Also a heat-proof stand for serving the coffee at the table. "Kitchen" model means the Silex is used over the heating unit of the kitchen stove.

A DOUBLE BOILER is a very necessary piece of equipment in most kitchens for many cooking purposes. A 2-qt. size of an aluminum that will wear for years sells for $1.79, usually $2.25. This is one of the specials of a sale at a well-known kitchenware department.

A NEW LOW price on those popular fudge and spice puddings! Now selling at two for 25c. Make an ideal quick dessert. Simply heat and serve with whipped cream or pudding sauce. Although these are both rich in flavor, they are delicate and light in texture.

SINCE FOOD MUST appeal to the eye to be appetizing, it is a challenge to the housewife to serve foods as attractively as possible. Fruit makes an ideal combination for a meat platter, and an unusual garnish is stuffed oranges filled with chopped nuts and fruit stuffing. They are baked in an orange syrup or grenadine syrup, and a 12-oz. jar sells for 50c.

DEVILED HAM comes in an attractive jar to serve at the table. A jar sells for 25c. Makes an excellent addition for the hostess tray, which lends an ease of hospitality and is so much in vogue at the present time.

TIME WAS when an epicurean palate was a luxury but now it is more a matter of clever shopping and taking advantage of new foods on the market. We have found a champagne sauce to be used with roasts, steaks, hams, chops, etc. It will keep indefinitely. Will never spoil or sour when exposed to the air. Selling at the very low price of 35c. Ordinarily these sauces are imported from France and for the same size sell for $1.10. This sauce is made in this country. Of excellent quality and distinctive aroma.

A FOOD CHOPPER does many difficult jobs easily and effectively, and should be among the equipment of every well stocked kitchen. 94c at a near-by department store, usually $1.50.

I SHALL BE DELIGHTED to tell you the where and how much of all the above items, if you will send the column clipped and checked, and that necessary name and address, with a loose 3c stamp. Or, telephone Martha Lee, at LIBerty 4000.

Faithfully yours,

MARTHA LEE.

Hostess Problems

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A young lady 16 years of age is giving a luncheon and bridge at a hotel. What sort of invitation should be issued to sixteen couples (all girls)? Should they be printed or written and what should their contents be?

2. Is it proper for an adult, parents or relatives, to chaperon this party?

3. Does the girl act as hostess with the chaperon, or does she assume all responsibilities, if capable?

CONSTANT READER

1. Such an important party should be planned and done with great taste and care, and such a young lady should give the party with her mother as hostess. The best taste would be for the mother to write the invitations, on double-sheeted note-paper, of as fine quality as she can get. This gives the party the correct beginning. The note of invitation would read something like this:

Dear Mary:

It would make Helena and me very happy if you would come to a luncheon and bridge on Friday, the first of March, at the Blank Hotel. I am asking a group of Helena's friends, and we are most eager to have you come. Luncheon is at half after one o'clock, in the hotel. Do say that you will come, and make us both delighted!

Dearest love from us both, and the high anticipation of seeing you on the first.

Jane Robbins Graham.

2. Yes, as I said in the first answer, the girl's mother, or aunt, if for some reason it is not convenient for the mother to be there, should be hostess of the party. She should be at the luncheon, to receive the guests, and, if she wishes, she will play bridge. The last is not necessary, but she should stay at the party to give it the background of having an older representative of the family present. The girl's guests will then know that everything is done with the charming taste that is so important to this kind of party.

3. The girl is co-hostess, not the principal hostess.

HUGH KNEW OF CRAZED LEE'S PLAN

CHAPTER 273

AT MY query as to Hugh Grantland's reason for telling my father of Lee Chow's crazy theories concerning Dicky and Hugh and me, the man who was at once my parent and the "chief," under whom I had worked in the diplomatic secret service during the World War, gave me a steady, searching look which made me feel suddenly petty and stubborn.

"Because," he said gravely, "Hugh feared that Lee Chow might be insane enough to put his theories to the test and try to kidnap you."

"Oh!" I said lamely, and Lillian gave a low but expressive whistle.

"No wonder he had to tell somebody about it," she said, and my father gave an assenting little nod.

"Hugh did not dream, however," he went on, "that Lee Chow had any thought of putting Richard out of the way in order to smooth the pathway for the new union which he was so craftily planning. So Hugh threw all his safeguards about you, not wishing that you should even dream of Lee Chow's madness if it were possible to keep it from you.

HYPNOTIC POWERS

"I think he dreaded Lee Chow's undoubted hypnotic powers more than anything else," my father went on after an instant's hesitation, "for he warned me especially to watch out for any attempt of the Chinese in that direction."

"May I ask a question, Chief?" Lillian interposed, much in the manner of a small school girl. I would not have been surprised to see her hand frantically waving in the air.

"Of course," he told her, smiling, and she spoke slowly, with a little pause after each word.

"Why, when Hugh feared that Lee Chow was going to make a mess of things, did he go off to the beach at Avis Arlen's invitation, and leave the Chinese at large, burdening you with the task of keeping him in order?"

HUGH'S THEORY

"Because," he said, "Hugh was afraid that if he were here, Lee Chow might say or do something which would prove highly embarrassing to Margaret. With him out of the way, Hugh reasoned that Lee Chow would content himself with trying to hypnotize Margaret into going with him, an attempt which his warning had prepared me to frustrate."

My father shot a keen glance at me, then thoughtfully began speaking again, rapidly this time. "When Hugh came over to find Lee Chow gone, and learned from me that the attempt at hypnotic influence had failed, he began to have vague fears that the Chinese might attempt mischief in some other direction. When Richard did not return those fears crystallized, and he went with Harry in search of him. The rest you know."

"There's another question troubling me, Chief," Lillian said.

"Then you would better ask it," my father told her, smiling.

"Have you any idea whether Hugh thinks Lee Chow is shamming or insane?" she asked slowly.

Are you serving a MINUS MEAL?

Many wives, unknowingly, serve "minus meals." The food is good, and well cooked. But it has little or no "bulk"—needed to promote regular habits.

"Minus meals" frequently cause common constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in the diet. Headaches, loss of appetite and dull, spiritless days too often follow.

Correct the "minus meal" by serving Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly. Its gentle "bulk" does not break down in the body as much as the fiber in fruits and vegetables. So it is more effective. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron.

Certainly it is safer to use this natural food in place of patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If relief is not obtained, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN remains effective with continued use. Serve as a cereal with milk or cream, or cook into muffins, breads, waffles, etc. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Stuart Is Troubled

CHAPTER 32

But Kent thought it a bit silly when Sharlene insisted on leaving the taxi at Canal street and proceeding on foot down the narrow sidewalks. They had to go single file and sometimes step into the street to avoid idle groups of chattering foreigners.

"Old French Quarter!" he exploded. "It's modern Dago slums!"

"Wait!" She commanded and led the way past the stores and crowds, until they entered a peaceful, dreaming street where the fragrance of magnolias came from behind some garden wall on the soft night breeze.

She took him up on a balcony where they could look through delicate iron lace into a moonlit world. The moon had all the witchery of that other night in Asia and the shadows of the fragile iron work were just as lovely as those cast by the ancient white marble lattices in distant India.

Happy and Hungry

Kent was looking closely at the iron lace. "I'd like to buy this grille. It'd look swell on the balcony of a Spanish-type house. Have it cleaned up, of course. They ought to pull down these old buildings—they're unsafe and unsanitary."

Sharlene was silent. Her mood of dreams was shattered into shining bits, but she clung loyally to Kent and would not let herself think what Stuart would have said under similar circumstances.

"Come on, honey," he urged. "I'm all set for those oysters Rockefeller. I'm starved!"

So they turned their steps to the famous old restaurant and Kent was presently rewarded by a plate of succulent oysters in their half shells, smothered in an incomparable green sauce that is talked of 'round the world wherever gourmets gather.

There was a big table near them around which some nine or ten young American men sat eating appreciatively. They were a boisterous crew, happy and hungry and able to pay for what they wanted. Half a dozen waiters danced attendance. There was one empty place and much talk about why a certain "Dook" did not appear.

"Hey, garcon, more of these balloons!" One of the boys held up in his fingers the potato which had been fried in hot grease so that it was a mere fragile blister, filled with air.

"That was a dude of a shot to get," argumentatively from a black-browed young man, "the one he had to make across the cotton bales!" . . . "Yeah, and was it funny to rig up the mike so as to get Sheila's voice above the darkies' singing?" . . . "Where's the Dook, anyhow?" . . . "Any red ink, garcon? Come on, you know you can find some." . . . "Where the devil is the Dook? He missing things." . . . "He's had to phone the studio long distance and break the news about that scratched film—"

"Oh!" said Sharlene in an under tone to Kent. "They're a motion picture troupe from Hollywood!"

"Sure enough. They seem to have the devil of a good time, these picture people." Kent spoke half-enviously.

"There's the Dook!" roared the gang.

Lucien came towards the boys at the big table, who were shouting to him to hurry up. Then he saw Sharlene's excited, welcoming face and deflected his course.

Mark Twain Story

"Lucien! This is my husband. Mr. Damerell, Mr. Morrow."

"Won't you join us?" asked Kent.

When he came back and sat down at their table, he looked at their plates. "Oysters? Not for mine! Me for the big steak!"

"What are you doing in New Orleans, Lucien?" Sharlene asked.

"Another 'Showboat'?"

"No. Mark Twain story. It's going great!" Lucien's eyes shone with enthusiasm and good feeling.

"You picture fellows," Kent said, smiling, "get such a kick out of your job! You're in the amusement business and you get a lot of amusement out of it."

"Sure. It's a game. We who actually make the pictures get all the fun. It's no picnic for the 'execs' who sit and worry about Wall Street. But for me it's thrilling! I wouldn't do anything else. You see, I started out in the bond business and there was no adventure, no excitement, no romance, and I thought I'd die. But in this business I'm getting younger every day I live."

"It interests me," Kent said thoughtfully, "more than anything else in the line of business. I've thought about it a lot—this and producing plays on Broadway. But this game looks like more real fun. I've about exhausted the possibilities of golf and yachts and fishing—"

"You can have all those in pictures," Lucien pointed out, "and a million more things besides. Why don't you throw some of your money into the field? Time is ripe for independents now."

Kent's eyes began to sparkle. "What do you say, Sharlene? Shall we go to Hollywood?"

Sharlene was startled, but she answered gaily: "Whither thou goest and all that!"

Lucien Morrow was looking at her but she avoided his eyes.

Stuart was walking over the Hollywood hills one windy day in February. Great grey clouds scudded across the sky out of the black North. They twisted and writhed in a tumbled mass over the opening of the ravine, blotting out the comforting glimpse of the town.

His eyes were fixed somberly on the great blackened patch ahead where a disastrous brush fire had roared its destructive way in the autumn.

"Am I to be like that seared ground forever?" he thought. Never to feel the uprush of Spring inside me again?"

"Oh, shut up!" Stuart muttered irritably and turned towards home.

He stopped at the mailbox at the foot of the hill. He had not been interested enough to look in it for three days. A solitary bill was forthcoming. It was from the artists' supply firm.

Stuart tore it open on the way up to the house, dreading to find out how much he owed. There was a note appended to the bill. Very peremptory. "We regret that we shall have to close your account if this bill, long overdue, is not paid at once."

And the bill was for close to two hundred dollars.

"Luxury" Business

Stuart let himself into his studio and looked blankly around the cold, cheerless place, as if asking where the money was to come from.

No use sending any more soap "ideas." The advertising business was shot to bits along with almost every other enterprise since the crash of the stock market.

With a sigh Stuart started to pack up the canvasses smeared with that two hundred dollars' worth of paint. He did not believe in any one of them. Horrible daubs. Hesitating, immature. But his only stock in trade. Perhaps Abe Foreman could get a few dollars for them from some benighted fool.

But Foreman, the art dealer, was having his own troubles, being in a "luxury" business. Abe was nervous and irritable and in no mood to be kind. Nothing good had come from that hill-top studio for a long time. He eyed his tall, thin, reluctant visitor without warmth.

"I—I hope you can sell some of this truck, Abe," Stuart began haltingly.

"Let's see it," non committally from Foreman. Stuart unpacked and set up his canvases in the midst of a depressing silence that continued ominously as the expert scrutinized each painting in turn.

At the end Abe turned away and lit a cigar. "Take 'em away," he said tersely. "I can't sell 'em."

"I hoped perhaps there'd be some—"

"Some boob, eh? Well, I don't play my customers a dirty trick, see? Some of 'em wouldn't know any better than to buy these—on your former reputation. But it ain't fair—to them or to you—to let that truck go out as Pennington's."

Stuart was silent, looking at the floor.

"What's got into you, Pennington? You're afraid. You used to handle color with freedom, and magnificent effect. Now look at these things. What's the matter? Ain't you got any more gumption?"

"Well, I didn't have anything inside, Abe. Vacant. Gone blooie. So I began to look outside—to see what the other fellows were doing. I got so much from such contacts in Paris . . . I've been trying for restraint, subtlety—"

WE GIVE you a celanese taffeta with a lovely dull, though crisp, finish—that launders like fine old linen! It has pert youthfulness from the grosgrain bows to the side-belted flared peplum, the lozenge buttons, to the neatly flared skirt. Comes in junior sizes—11 to 17—and in new combinations like aqua and brown, navy and red, gold and brown. Since the jacket is separate, buttoned all the way down the front for ease in removal, you can play this season's favorite fashion game—switching things around to make unusual and varied ensembles. It costs less than six dollars. For details on the washable taffeta suit, which is from a Boston shop, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Beauty Grains

Question: My skin is not as smooth and fine as I would like to have it. Can you suggest using something to clear it up and also to refine it? I have some blackheads and a few pimples. My mother recently bought me a jar of finishing cream. Will you please tell me how to use it, and will it help to clear up my complexion?

Myrle, Boston.

Answer: As a finishing cream should be used only for a powder make-up base, I cannot see how it could help in clearing up your skin. A finishing cream must be used very sparingly and then blended with great care into the skin before the application of face powder. I have a home-made recipe for beauty grains which are used instead of soap and water and creams. These grains are excellent for skins which are afflicted with blackheads and a few blemishes. They have an almond-soap base and are easily made and are very inexpensive. Write to the Beauty Editor, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for these grains.

KIND NEIGHBOR COMES TO HER RESCUE

SHE was a six months' bride—and her husband was bringing the Big Boss home to dinner.

"I'm panicky," she confided to her next-door neighbor. "I can make grand salad and desserts but meat is the thing men care about. If I only knew a really marvelous meat dish."

"I'll lend you a wonderful recipe," the neighbor promised, "for Deviled Roast Beef. I got it from Francois, chef of the famous Restaurants Longchamps in New York City. It's delicious and so simple."

It was perfectly simple—and so good the Big Boss took two helpings!

This is the recipe: Spread a slice of roast beef (cooked or uncooked) with Gulden's Prepared Mustard, dip in bread crumbs, dot with butter and broil. Try it on your family or your guests—they're sure to praise it. Be sure to use Gulden's—the flavor secret is in Gulden's distinctive blend of finest mustard seeds and rare spices.

Porcelain Smooth

Liquid Foundation Beautifies Skin

By THE BEAUTY EDITOR

WHAT WITH WINTER gales howling down from the North one minute, and tropical temperatures playing tricks the next, it's little wonder that our complexions take on a sad, gouty look at this season of year.

Personally, we feel quite sure that had we the time, patience, and price to allot an hour or so a day administering creams and unguents to our parched skin, that we could outwit King Winter very nicely.

But having no such inclination, we were faced with the problem of finding an adequate complexion balm that would meet all kinds of freakish weather demands. To kid yourself into thinking that your skin doesn't need a protection is as hopeless as trying to walk down Tremont street in overshoes and a bathing suit.

Some girls dislike vanishing creams, especially if their skin has an oily tendency. Hence, to satisfy an important faminine whim, a cosmetic house worked away until they got a liquid foundation which gives a "chiffon finish" to the skin.

If the once smooth texture of your skin has recently taken on the appearance of an old nail-file, and you are rightfully in despair about the whole thing, here is hope for you. This foundation contains no alcohol, so it cannot be drying to the most sensitive skin. When applied with a piece of absorbent cotton, it gives a glamorous porcelain overtone to the face and neck. Arms, back and shoulders are more than flattered by it, because it "snows under" blemishes and discolorations at the first daub.

The sponsors of this foundation have just now announced that two new shades, peach and brunette, have been added to the five which flattered lovely ladies for some time. You'll have no difficulty in matching your own skin tone to one of these shades, and no fear, either, of climatic changes.

This foundation to which make-up will adhere almost indefinitely, is sold in Boston shops. To learn the name of this lotion call The Beauty Editor, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FARMS To Fight DOPE

FEDERAL CURES FOR ADDICTS

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service

Washington, Feb. 19—Seven years ago a little band of earnest men and women assembled in a room in the United States Capitol. It was the office of the late Representative Stephen G. Porter, of Pennsylvania.

They had a dream and a vision. They determined to provide a sanctuary for the treatment and cure of narcotic addition.

First Attempt

Nothing comparable ever before had been attempted anywhere in the world. Land was purchased. One farm colony was located near Lexington, Ky., the other near Fort Worth, Texas. Building funds were delayed, but finally appropriated.

During the first week in May, the farm at Lexington, comprising 1100 acres, is to be formerly opened. Before long, too, contracts will be let at Forth Worth, a 1500-acre project. Both are under control of the United States Public Health Service.

Addicts now crowded in federal prisons will be transferred to the two rehabilitation centers. In addition, non-convict addicts may apply to federal courts for entrance to undergo curative treatments.

Treated as Patients

It is estimated that one out of four federal prisoners either are addicts or violators of the dope laws.

At the farms, the addicts will be considered more as patients than as convicts. All the powers of medicine and science will be used to restore their wrecked lives and return them to society as useful citizens.

The Lexington colony will have the finest hospital facilities. It is to be run on a self-sustaining basis. Patients will be taught dairying, truck farming, poultry and hog raising, landscaping and trades and arts. There will be regular athletics. There will be machine and carpenter shops and a factory to make clothing for the inmates.

No Lasting Cure

Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming and his chief assistant, Dr. Walter L. Treadway, in charge of the building construction, have assembled a staff of experts. The resident director will be Dr. Lawrence Kilb, perhaps the country's leading authority on dope addiction.

Experiments will be conducted to determine the best methods of treatment. So far no satisfactory and lasting cure has been found for addiction.

From 200 to 300 federal prisoners will be transferred to Lexington in May as the first inmates of the institution. The process will be continued during the summer. It is hoped 1000 patients, the farm's capacity, will be there by September 1.

Representative Boylan, of New York, a leader in the campaign for the farms, believes the move represents one of the greatest strides in history against the curse of dope. He said:

"In the past, unfortunately, dope addicts have been treated more as criminals, and with a harshness and a severity that killed any ambition they might have had for a reformation of their lives.

"These institutions will seek, and I hope with great success, to rehabilitate the most God-forsaken unfortunates in the world, the dope addicts."

Girl 'Not Lost! 'Just Napping' as Police of 5 Cities Search

With a clear conscience—and no least idea that police of Boston and four surrounding communities were hunting for her—little Betty Mayman, "lost" West End girl, was sleeping peacefully like this when officers and cameramen found her in the home of a playmate in Parkman street, West End.
(Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

"'Course I wasn't lost. I was just visiting—and I took a little nap!" That's all there is to it, according to smiling Betty Mayman, awake now after a general police alarm had located her asleep in the home of a playmate. The Mayman home is in North Russell street, West End.

Missing Girl Found by Taxi Man

It was one of those busy nights for Boston police, and when they had hunted 7-year-old Betty Mayman of the West End for hours on end help was asked in four other cities and towns.

Posses scurried here and there, through the North and West Ends of Boston, through Somerville, Arlington, Medford and Brookline.

And then, by sheer chance, at 5 a. m. today, a taxicab operator heard of it all and it settled a problem for him too. Betty was asleep in his home.

Morris Walinska, the taxi man, who lives in Parkman street, West End, said that while his wife was out their daughter Ida and a strange little girl, a playmate, had come in and gone to bed.

Mrs. Walinska decided that the child would be better off in her house than wandering around the streets, so with some misgiving she kept her.

AUSTEN LAKE on

Lefty Grove's Return To the Native

Austen Lake

I HAVE NEVER UNDERSTOOD Lefty Grove, whose swift moods and April nature are between himself, his parson and his God. I am as puzzled by his long brooding silences, when he sulks in a corner and gnaws an unlit cigar, as I am by his sudden squalls of gaiety, when he will slip a toad in your pocket or hand you explosive matches and give his barking terrier's laugh.

He might have spent the winter simmering under the Florida sun, or hauling bass from the crowded waters of the Gulf, or in shotgun prowling through the tropic jungles after marsh hens, little red deer, 'possum or 'coons.

The Red Sox invited him to do this at no cost to himself and for the sake of his pitching health. But he chose to stay in his tumbledown hill village on the upper slopes of the Cumberlands, where the natives drowse in slack attitudes and everybody is cousin to everybody else.

Life in Lanaconing, Md., is languid. The houses lean against the steep pitch like hill-weary climbers who have stopped to rest and remain, forgetful of the little distance to the top.

He's up at dawn in his scarlet windbreak, making throat sounds to his beagle pack and cradling his gun in the hollow of his arm, as past generations of Groves, and their mountain breed, have poked through the wilderness for food instead of fun.

* * *

Journey in Contentment

IS IT ODD THAT "LEFTY," who knows the luxury of hotel life in major league cities and has traveled amid Pullman linen, crystal and gilt, should hie back, between seasons, to the simplicity of his mountain town, where his chums sit out their days squirting tobacco jets through their teeth at their toes?

When he might be toasting his skin on Florida's silver sands or loafing on the porch of some Southern tourist palace, is it odd that he dwells in a plain, frame house on an unpaved street, next to the wind-weathered, unpainted homes of his own people?

He has earned nearly $200,000 from his skill in throwing an eight-ounce baseball, and has saved most of it. In the sight of his neighbors he is fabulously wealthy. But he mooches around in worn whipcord pants, a stained hunting jacket and high-laced boots, on easy terms with his rustic friends.

I wonder whether he, who asks little of life, does not get most, or at least more than Babe Ruth and Jack Dempsey, who, like him, were born with can openers in their mouths instead of silver spoons, and who now dwell in New York penthouses in an atmosphere of tinsel and gawdy trimmings.

Candles for the Living

AT DAYTONA BEACH, FLA., Sir Malcolm Campbell, the British speed scientist, is tuning his multiple cylindered Blue Bird for its test on the beach.

He is alive and eager.

But in the newspaper libraries, where they store data on all sorts of public characters, both high and low, he is already dead.

A sordid thought, yet within the last few days every news desk in every large newspaper has received Sir Malcom's obituary to be filed within easy hand-reach, lest there be a soft spot in his sand causeway or an inner tube burst.

This was the case when Charles A. Lindbergh started his famous flight to Paris. In fact, today a vast army of world dignitaries would have the creeps if they knew that, in every newspaper "morgue" they are already laid out in lavender with lilies in their hands.

Gordon's Educational Oddities

PROFESSOR CHARLES GORDON'S weekly wrestling carnival at Mechanics Hall is more than a simple exhibition of muscle yanking. It is an education feast, like Bob Ripley's "astounding aggregation of educational oddities."

Professor Gordon is not content with mere barrel-chested strong men with derby hat muscles. Dear me, no! For a nominal tuition fee of $1, 75 cents and 40 cents he will satisfy anybody's hunger for knowledge.

Tonight he has Chief Wah-hoo, the Greek redskin, who will employ a mysterious torture called the "Indian deathlock" on Ted Germaine, the South Boston plumber, who during Professor Gordon's oddity evenings is a Laplander—in more ways than one.

Rev. James Holland, the Pennsylvania saver-of-souls, is tying up with Tony Papalino, the "light heavyweight champion of Italy," who in daytime is a Natick fruit vendor.

Dr. Louis Altshuler, M. D., who between times is the house physician at Minsky's Burlesque, is not on this week's display.

Neither is Melsheka, the Praying Arabian, who committed the unforgivable Mohammedan sin recently of kneeling on his bath towel in the ring and bowing toward Chicago instead of Holy Mecca.

But Win Robbins, who until the Tremont Plaza Night Club went broke was a snare drummer in the floor band, will entwine with Oka Mitsuro, the New York Japanese temple wrestler. And Cowboy Drake, the ex-rodeo bulldogger, will mop-twist with Ghafoor Khan, the East Indian fakir.

Professor Gordon is a progressive pioneer in these matters and hopes soon to match a pair of Siamese twins in a catch-as-catch, one-fall decision. He is also in the market for any available platter-mouthed, rubber-skinned or ossified people to throw in as extra educational measure.

Rules Restraint

THE NATIONAL COLLEGE FOOTBALL rules committee, in a masterly exhibition of self-control, limited its rules changes for 1935 to a few editorial corrections in the code. Most important of these is the "slow-whistle" rule, which now gives the runner freedom to pass or kick while on his feet and in the grasp of a tackler.

Thus the college coaches who squawked loudest when Colgate's sleight-of-hand laterals were tossed backward, while the runner was being hugged by opponents, find themselves snubbed by the rules makers.

The new reading implies that a carrier is still alive and free to pass until his progress is definitely halted, or, in other words, until he is hog-tied like a rodeo calf.

GEHRIG Signs for $30,000

4TH HIGHEST PAID PLAYER

RUPPERT MUM ON FADING BABE

By Associated Press

New York, Feb. 19—Lou Gehrig, the New York Yankees crown prince of swat, today signed a one-year contract for a figure popularly supposed to be around $30,000, a compromise between the reported offer of $27,000 and his own demand of $35,000 for 1935.

Whatever the figures on Lou's new contract, they certainly are substantially higher than last year, when he received $23,000, and are a recognition of his home-run hitting and a .363 batting average, which gave him the championship of the American League.

He also led in runs batted in with 165 and was second in receiving bases on balls, being walked 109 times to 111 for Jimmie Foxx, his slugging rival.

Gehrig's only rivals in either big league so far as salary goes are Bill Terry, player-manager of the New York Giants, who is reported to be receiving around $40,000 on a five year contract; Mickey Cochrane and Joe Cronin player-managers of the Detroit Tigers and the Boston Red Sox, respectively. All three of them, however, are paid for dual roles.

Good Guessers

Colonel Ruppert, after announcing the agreement said the negotiations were amiable and no difficulty was experienced in reaching a compromise. Asked directly if the reported $30,000 was correct, the Colonel answered that "the newspapermen make pretty good guesses sometimes."

As for Ruth, Ruppert said he had had no word from his fading star whose $80,000 salary for 1930 and 1931 was the all-time top in baseball and had no idea whether the Babe wanted to continue as a player.

Ruppert said there were no managerial posts open in either major league for Ruth and that no definite overtures ever had been made to him by any other club owner for Ruth's services in that capacity.

The Colonel said he had no conference planned with Ruth but undoubtedly would see him within the next three or four days.

IRISH WHIP IS ACCLAIMED BY THRONG

By Jack Conway

New York, Feb. 19—Dan O'Mahoney wrestled and punched his way into the hearts of the Irish of good old New York when he crushed Ray Steele in a furious mat battle at the Garden.

O'Mahoney used his famous "Irish Whip" to beat Steele down [illegible] in 17m. 2s. [illegible]

Steele went to the canvas. Danno seized Ray's right wrist and started his "Irish Whip." He crashed Steele to the canvas and picked him up and ran him across the ring.

He again dropped him to the canvas, then picked him up, whirled him over his shoulder and crashed him to the mat for the winning fall in 17m. 2s.

GRID DINNER AT HEIGHTS TOMORROW

Incidentally there will be [illegible] added attraction in that a definite official pronouncement will be made relative to the new football coach.

John P. Curley, graduate manager of athletics, is the chairman of the event, and he has promised to announce whether or not the athletic board has voted to adhere to the graduate coaching policy which has been in vogue at B. C. since 1927.

3 LICENSES AWARDED

WORK STARTS IN CAMBRIDGE SHORTLY

By Bob Ahearn

Massachusetts will be the mecca for followers of greyhound racing if the 124 racing nights granted three corporations by the State Racing Commission can be taken as a criterion.

And that is not all.

It is expected that one or more other licenses will be awarded as the law allows for a total of 200 nights of racing in the Commonwealth.

Sheldon Fairbanks' Boston Kennel Club, which has applied for a [illegible] and the Bristol [illegible] which plans [illegible] are the [illegible] remaining.

[illegible] for the three tracks [illegible] include [illegible] Cambridge and Methuen. [illegible] will open May [illegible] Columbus Day.

[illegible] included: Bay State Greyhound Association, Inc., on land bounded by Concord avenue, Terminal street, South place and the B. & M.

Old Harbor Kennel Club, Inc., on Old Colony avenue, corner Ralston street, South Boston, Howard C. Davis, president. Dates, July 3 to August 14, inclusive, and October 1 and October 12, inclusive, a total of 48 days.

Essex Country Greyhound Association, Inc., on land known as Lock Haven Country Club, Methuen. John McMannon, president. Dates, June 29 to August 10, inclusive, a total of 37 days.

Work on these tracks must be started not later than March 15. The Cambridge track will be a [illegible] of Walter O'Hara's Narragansett Park race oval.

Work will be started on the layout [illegible] 10 days, President George Funk announced this morning, and close to 200 men will be given employment.

The Bay State group is ready to spend $1[illegible] on the Cambridge plant, which will have a quarter mile track, a grandstand with a seating capacity of 2000 and a clubhouse.

With the awarding of licenses for dog racing no mention was made as to the expiration of horse racing charters.

Ring's Disqualification in '500' Rankles

CORNELL On Yale 1936 SCHEDULE

New York, Feb. 19—For the first year since 1920 Army and Yale will not meet on the football field in 1936.

Yale, in announcing its schedule for a year hence, disclosed that the Cadets will alternate with the Navy. Both of the service elevens will be played this fall, but next year the Elis will travel to Baltimore for a game with the Middies. The following year the Cadets will return to the schedule, playing in the Yale Bowl.

Only once since the two schools opened [illegible] 1893 has there been a break. That was from 1918 to 1920. Resuming play in 1921 each has won five games and tied four.

Cornell will appear on the Yale schedule in 1936. Their only other [illegible] 1889 when the Elis won [illegible] and 70-0.

At the same time Army announced it would play Columbia and Colgate in 1936, the former in New York and the Red Raiders at home.

STAUKA RATES THREE STARS IN 7TH

By Dave Wilson

BEST BET—MINEY MYERSON

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 19—Miney Myerson appears well placed in the six furlongs of the fifth number here tomorrow afternoon.

Postscript, Candescent, Mountain Elk

FIRST RACE—$800, claiming, four-year-olds and up, seven furlongs.

[illegible] Postscript	1[illegible]	Hanford	2-1
[illegible] Candescent	[illegible]	Meade	[illegible]

[illegible] Lad	[illegible]	Arcaro	15-1
9 Corrymeela	108	Wright	15-1
[illegible] Along	101	Prain	20-1

POSTSCRIPT closed like a runaway express train in a six-furlong dash a few days back. The increased distance should prove right down the Polymelian filly's alley.

Playful Tour, Hiatus, Free Spirit

10 Playful Tour	[illegible]	Wright	4-1
12 Hiatus	[illegible]	Wright	4-1
11 Free Spirit	[illegible]	[illegible]	6-1

a—[illegible] & W. G. Merton entry.

PLAYFUL TOUR, second to Empty Bottle, has only to run back to that last race in order to grace the winner's circle. HIATUS, the main danger, was disqualified after winning her first start at Tropical.

Aegis, Flint Shot, Broad Meadows

THIRD RACE—$800, claiming, four-year-olds and up, seven furlongs.

7 Aegis	112	Beabo	4-1
[illegible] Flint Shot	110	Gilbert	[illegible]
[illegible] Broad Meadows	x1[illegible]8	Lynch	6-1
3 Ding Bin	113	Corbett	4-1
2 Our Da[illegible]	[illegible]	Arcaro	8-1

[illegible]	111	[illegible]	10-1
6 [illegible] Brook	x1[illegible]3	C. W. Smith	15-1

Enthusiasm, Justa Jones, Volta Maid

[illegible] Enthusiasm	10[illegible]	Hanford	2-1
2 Justa Jones	1[illegible]8	Gilbert	3-1
3 [illegible]	118	Wright	[illegible]
3 [illegible]	1[illegible]8	Meade	5-1
1 Vera Cruz	95	G. Watson	8-1
7 Hastin	103	S. Renick	15-1
4 Miss Careful	115	Arcaro	15-1
6 Chief Poot	107	J. Renick	[illegible]

ENTHUSIASM, a gun from the barrier, is tossed into this number under a feather of 103 pounds. The Whitneyite figures to make every pole a winning one. JUSTA JONES, another that is treated lightly by the handicapper, shapes up as the main danger.

Miney Myerson, Gentle Knight, Main Chance

1 Miney Myerson	116	Wright	2-1
8 Gentle Knight	111	Winters	4-1
3 Main Chance	109	Litzenberger	4-1
2 [illegible] 2d	112	Villena	6-1
[illegible]	1[illegible]3	Meade	8-1
1 Frederick	10[illegible]	Porter	10-1
9 Sun Monk	[illegible]	S. Renick	20-1
7 Some Knight	11[illegible]	[illegible]	15-1
4 W[illegible]	10[illegible]	Merritt	20-1
[illegible]	97	G. Watson	20-1
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	20-1

Howard, Chancing, Evergold

[illegible] Howard	114	[illegible]	2-1
2 Chancing	99	Litzenberger	[illegible]
1 Evergold	109	Arcaro	3-1
3 [illegible] Dad	95	Lindberg	5-1
5 Guapito	107	[illegible]	8-1
[illegible] Unencumbered	98	G. Watson	10-1

HOWARD figures to be along in time to head a field of this sort. The Araho stable color-bearer was never in better fettle. CHANCING drubbed a shifty field of platers a few days back and figures next best under the weight arrangements.

Stavka, Unknown Soldier, Pocket

3 Stavka	112	Arcaro	4-1
2 Unknown S[illegible]d	x110	Lynch	5-1
1 Pocket	110	Wright	[illegible]
7 Cristate	105	Porter	3-1
4 Motley	x110	Rainey	10-1
6 Granpa's Boy	x110	Dupre	10-1
8 St. Moritz	115	Abel	10-1

Xandra, Midshipman, Ukraine

7 Xandra	x109	Madeley	3-1
5 Midshipman	114	Merritt	4-1
4 Ukraine	109	[illegible]	5-1
9 Potion	112	Wright	4-1
3 Four Spot	x107	Rainey	6-1
1 Last Romance	x102	Hanford	10-1
8 Yellow Metal	109	Prain	15-1
6 Guiding Light	x102	G. Watson	15-1
2 Affirmative	x109	Rosen	20-1

JUST OVER LINE

Well, if you can't win, you can try hard to tie, and that is just what the Olympic Club icemen did last night at the Arena when they fought to a five-all deadlock with Harvard. BRUINS Take Up PORTLAND

Manager Frank Patrick of the Boston Bruins was forced to bring Jack Portland, star defenseman of the Bruin Cubs, up to the Bruins for tonight's battle with the Les Canadiens. An injury to Bert McInenly, spare defenseman of the Bruins, benched him.

McCOY Likes SOPH GUARD

Although Warren Cushman, Northeastern varsity center, will be well enough recovered from the grippe to return to the lineup when the Huskies meet Rhode Island this week end Coach Al McCoy will continue using Henry Bialkowski, soph guard, who played well against Springfield, at the post.

Bialkowski, a Quincy lad, has reached the form expected of him after cracking a wrist-bone earlier in the season.

Another dribbler who has made a hit with McCoy is Andy Smith. until last Saturday a sub-wing. Andy started the Springfield game paired with Captain Heath Morse and showed surprising improvement.

Shucco Whips Joe Lipps

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 19—Joe Lipps, Charlotte, N. C., scrapper, proved easy for Tony Shucco of Boston, who won an easy decision in ten rounds. Shucco weighed 174 to Lipps' 175 pounds.

Trojans To Disport In Jamaica

Professional basketball makes its debut in suburban surroundings Thursday evening at the Mary E. Curley School gym, Jamaica Plain, when the Boston Trojans of the American League play host to the highly touted Brooklyn Visitations.

The Trojans were forced to cancel their scheduled fray with the Philadelphia Hebrews last week, when the doors of the Irvington Street Armory were closed to basketball.

It is expected to have the St. Thomas Club five, which has a large following in the Jamaica district, play in a preliminary game. This will help a great deal in the attendance.

Fiddle Morley, coach of the local pros, will put his club through stiff practice sessions today and tomorrow in preparation for the Visitations. Both teams played last week-end, with the Brooklyn club winning out 32 to 22 in a hard fought contest.

One game is listed in the Greater Boston League tonight. The Converse Rubber five visits the East Boston Civic Center to play the Irwin Club. Tomorrow, the St. Thomas C. L. A. treks to the Boston Y. M. H. A. to meet the "Y" Jewels.

Arlington A. A. cagesters play host to the Woburn Rovers tomorrow night at East Junior High gym. The former five has been going great guns of late and should take the Woburn team into camp.

CANADIENS AT GARDEN

Dandurand's Magic Wand Revives Frenchmen

DRAWING CROWDS

By Bill Grimes

During the first eight seasons the Bruins were in the N. H. L., the mere mention that Les Canadiens were scheduled to play here was sufficient cause to start stampedes on the box office.

Although they have drawn fairly sizeable crowds for the past three seasons, Canadiens fell off as an attraction because of the change in their style of play and a let-down in the morale of the players.

Since Leo Dandurand added the coaching to his managerial duties the Flying Frenchmen are again what their name implies. And, moreover, they are once more a real box office attraction.

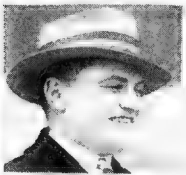
The Bruins are deadlocked in second place with New York Rangers who are playing St. Louis tonight in Gotham, while Canadiens are the third ranking club in the Canadian Division, with three more games to play than Americans, who are in fourth place.



LEO DANDURAND

Today, they are one of the toughest clubs in the N. H. L. to beat. Dandurand not only restored harmony but he rebuilt personal confidence and is getting results.

DEANS GET TOGETHER FOR FAMILY ROUNDUP

McKENNEY TO SCOUT

Joe McKenney may be through as Boston College football coach but he has not severed his connections entirely with the Heights.

McKenney's appointment as associate director of physical education in Boston schools was unanimously confirmed by the Boston school committee. McKenney will take over his new post within the next two weeks.

McKenney will continue to retain his interest in Boston College football in the capacity as scout and unofficial aide to the new coach, in all probability, Dinny McNamara.

It is expected within a few days that McKenney will tender his resignation as coach and professor at the Heights and McNamara's appointment as head coach be announced.

DOLLAR-A-YEAR CONTRACTS UNFAIR

BARROW GETS IN DUTCH

By Joe Cashman

Tentative dollar-a-year contracts, such as the New York Yankees have tendered to five of their players, are frowned on by Judge Landis and will be banned in the future.

The fans let out such a roar of disapproval over the veteran outfielder who fractured his skull trying to win a game being accorded such shabby treatment that Landis lost little time in turning thumbs down on the scheme.

Rabbit Maranville has been requested to reach Boston in time to attend the weekly meeting of the "Boost the Braves" committee at the Copley-Plaza tomorrow evening. The midget had planned to show up here Thursday morning, so it's likely he'll be on hand on the morrow.

The first trek to the Southland starts today. Members of the Athletics living in the vicinity of Philadelphia will hop off for Fort Myer, Fla., where the squad will be in practice Thursday.

Cincinnati battersmen, who've been taking the baths at Hot Springs for the past week, will also begin their journey to Tampa today. They'll start tossing the ball around on Friday.

The Cincinnati party will include 21 players, 17 pitchers and four catchers, or almost as many as the Braves' entire squad.

Connie Mack is taking along 14 pitchers and two catchers, one of whom is none other than Jimmy Foxx. So it looks as though the [illegible] seemed to be a receiver.

INVESTIGATE N. Y. Amateurs

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 19 (INS)—The legislature today had before it a resolution calling upon the attorney general to investigate the operation of the amateur athletic events in New York city.

Sponsored by Assemblyman George F. Torrney, Queens Democrat, the measure charges "grave abuses by promoters and lessees of properties used for such events." It further alleges that tickets are unavailable at box offices and must be purchased from ticket agencies, some of which are unlicensed.

FLOYD GIBBONS'

"STRONG HANDS FROM BEHIND"

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

A whole flock of good adventure yarns, boys and girls, have come out of Greece, that "fabled land of song and story," whose Ulysses, whose Achilles, whose Jason and whose Hercules have been handed down to us by generation after generation of our forbears as the first adventures of history—the greatest adventurers of all time. Five thousand years ago Greece had practically a monopoly on Adventure.

FLOYD GIBBONS

Adventure was born and raised on her sunny [illegible]. It [illegible], a lusty infant, through the Golden Age, and matured to a full maturity in the days of Salamis, of Marathon, of Thermopylae and the Spartan Three Hundred. And today boys and girls, [illegible] chapter [illegible] story of [illegible] cliffs [illegible] waters of the Gulf of P[illegible].

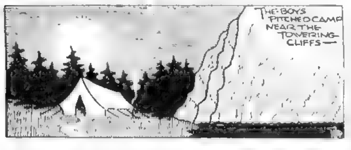
It is a red hot up to the [illegible] Beniades. Compared to those two thousand and [illegible] year old tales of the ancients it is practically [illegible] months ago that John went to Greece on [illegible] him the thrill of his life, and John [illegible] which this thrill came to him.

It was on that day, early in the morning [illegible] other boys set out from Laurium [illegible] along the seacoast. They hiked all day [illegible] camp, toward evening, at a spot where the [illegible] towering cliffs rose straight out of the blue waters [illegible] talla. Then [illegible] was still light, John and two of the other boys [illegible] the top of the cliffs that reared high above [illegible] the camp.

The top of the cliff was a narrow shelf two feet wide. On one side was the water, far below; on the other, a treacherous, shifting bank of sand and gravel that sloped upward toward the fields above. For half a mile or so the boys walked along this ledge, taking care not to walk too near the edge.

For half a mile they picked their way along that ledge. Then suddenly, they heard a soft, rumbling sound behind them. They turned slowly, cautiously, for quick [illegible] movements were [illegible] on that narrow, rocky shelf, and saw the cause of the [illegible]. A young landslide had taken place.

If they stepped on that soil, it would slide and take them with it over the side of the cliff into those deep, blue, shark-infested waters. If they tried to climb up the bank beside them, that would slide, too. The only thing to do was go on—look for an exit at the other end of the shelving path.



THE BOYS PITCHED CAMP NEAR THE TOWERING CLIFFS—

They walked on for another ten minutes, picking their way carefully over the uneven rock, eyeing the gravel bank apprehensively for signs of another landslide. Then they turned a sharp corner in the path and saw a sight that made their hearts sink to the bottoms of their boots. Before them was the end of the path—a dead end—blocked by a jutting rock that rose upward from the top of the cliff.

They were trapped. On one side of them was the water, on the other, that treacherous bank of shifting gravel. Before them and behind them escape was cut off by rock and slippery sand.

John could swim. The other two boys couldn't. They told John it was up to him to dive off that steep cliff into those dangerous waters, swim around to the beach and get help. John refused, and nobody can blame him. He said they ought to try shouting first.

They shouted till they were hoarse. No answer. [illegible] two boys were getting restless now, whispering and casting [illegible] at one another. Then, suddenly, John got the shock of [illegible] hands grabbed him suddenly from behind. He felt himself lifted [illegible] air—heaved over the edge of the cliff. His two pals had thrown him overboard.

The water came flying up to meet him. He landed with a splash, went down—down. Panic gripped him. He thought he [illegible] hit bottom—thought he could see a hundred sharks com[illegible] after him. Then he started to rise again, came shooting up into the air [illegible] struck out for shore.

He was almost exhausted when he reached the low beach at the end of the cliffs. He dragged himself up on shore, ran back to the camp and gasped out the story to the five boys sitting around the fire. They got a long piece of strong rope, tied it to a tree at the top of the bank, below which the other two lads were marooned, and lowered the other end down to the captives. In a few minutes they were back on safe ground again, and half an hour later they were all back at the camp, talking over their experience while John's wet clothes dried before the fire.

There [illegible] is the story of a modern Jason. Y[illegible] an adventure [illegible] that has given you more of a thrill than [illegible] a Homeric hero [illegible] in his whole life time. Write down the facts and send them [illegible] row we'll have [illegible] Danger in the Bay.

$10.00 EVERY DAY and $100.00 EVERY MONTH is what Floyd Gibbons will pay American readers to prove that more thrilling and interesting TRUE adventures happen in YOUR life and in the lives of your friends than anything fiction writers can invent. And Floyd will prove it every day on this page. The famous war correspondent's own life is filled with adventure. He was wounded in "No Man's Land," torpedoed in mid-Atlantic and rode with Death in the Sahara, but he wants to write YOUR story now. Send it in to him today. There are no conditions. Everyone is eligible.

King Perfect In Farce

By HARRIS MORGAN

The Arctic Circle goes slightly Wodehouse in the bright little farce called "Petticoat Fever," which brought Dennis King back to the Plymouth Theater last evening.

Set in a lonely wireless shack in Labrador, where the winds howl, the thermometer registers [illegible] below and a man's pulses still beat madly, the fever is aggravated by Dascom Dinsmore at his first glimpse in two years of a beautiful woman.

The [illegible] in question presumably belong to Ethel Campbell, who with her fiance drops out of the skies into a snowbank and to a pert and determined young lady named Clara Wilson who turns up along toward the end of the second act.

While the snow swirls outside the window all is sweetness and light inside with most of the [illegible] fiance shed by the elfin Dascom who promptly falls in love with Sir James Fenton's pretty flying companion. This way [illegible] suspects both his [illegible] and the couple and decides to leave his plane imbedded in the Arctic ice, bribes an obliging native and attempts to escape with his lady love.

The Arctic social season seems to be in full swing however. The next [illegible] is the blonde Miss Wilson who had paid two thousand dollars and trekked a few thousand miles to get her man. With the return of the lost lovers, a parson, a wheezy portable organ and some witnesses, the [illegible] concerns itself with getting everybody married to somebody else.

The playwright, Mark Reed, wears his unique idea a bit thin, but Mr. King's perfect and very light touch, the decorative Doris Dalton, who bears up beautifully and acts delightfully, and Leo G. Carroll as the distraught Sir James all help quicken the pace of a farce that skips along merrily where it might so easily falter.

DODEZ DOOMED

To Hang June 18

Bridgeport, Ct., Feb. 19—In the hope of prevailing upon his three judges to sentence him to life imprisonment, William H. Dodez, 65, former engineer of Fairfield, pleaded guilty to the murder of his divorced wife's husband.

He lost his desperate gamble, something of a rarity in Connecticut legal annals. He was sentenced to hang June 18.

Post Delays Hop

Burbank, Cal., Feb. 19—Wiley Post has postponed his cross-country speed flight to New York until he secures a new propeller more suitable for service in the substratosphere. The decision was made after another short test spin here.

RACE

For Banner TIGHTENING

Reports from all squadrons indicates the race for the wing banner, awarded every three months is growing keener. Squadron 47, of Roxbury, with 48 points, is still in the lead. Here are reports from other units:

SQUADRON NO. 276

"Roscoe Turner" Squadron No. 276, of North Cambridge. Commander, Louis Bruneau. Banner points, 10.

Ronald Breton and Frank Vigeant were elected captain and sergeant-at-arms respectively. A lecture on Junior Birdmen activities was given and plans for a flying model contest launched.

SQUADRON NO. 270

"Falcon" Squadron No. 270, of Taunton. Commander, George Washburn. Banner points, 4.

The mother and father of Captain Roger Andrews have accepted sponsorship of the squadron. Junior Birdmen handbooks were discussed and plans for future work made. Proficiency and program committees were chosen.

SQUADRON NO. 263

"Flying Eagles" Squadron No. 263, of Woonsocket, R. I. Commander, Morton Schafer. Banner points, 4.

Great plans are on-the-wing for the building of a club house, the acquirement of a library of Junior Birdmen handbooks and the initiation of model building.

SQUADRON NO. 244

A point system involing model-building, attendance, speeches, etc. is enforced in this squadron. Holder of the most points at the end of a certain period is given an award. Questions are asked at meetings to ascertain how well members have assimilated the aviation knowledge given in the Sunday Advertiser air course lessons.

Question---Air Yours For Asking

WERE BRICKS EVER USED IN AIR COMBAT?
YES!~ IN 1914 FRENCH PILOTS THREW THEM AT ENEMY "PROPS." 2 SHIPS WERE DOWNED COLBY

Is there anything you want to know about aviation or about the Junior Birdmen organization? Send question and it will be answered here.

Melvin Hutchins, of Hollis, N. H.—The only aeronautical pictures we have are those brought in by members for display purposes.

Joseph Hurley, Salem—Some day we may have room to publish scale model plans, but just now it is impossible.

Lawrence Carver, of Middleboro—All New England has headquarters at 100 Summer street, Boston. Louis F. Ross is the Wing commander. Have each member send in for whatever material he needs.

Handbooks, each dealing with a different type of model plane are now on sale at the Junior Birdman Library Bureau, 7 Central Park West, New York city. They cost only 10 cents apiece.

Edward Barrow, Brookline — Not all planes having radios have permanent aerials. In the case of an army plane, the wire is often on a reel and is released when the radio is to be used, and wound back when shut off.

RAIL NET

Preliminary report of Northern Pacific Railway for year ended December 31, 1934, shows surplus of $899,047 after taxes and charges, equal to 36 cents a share on 2,480,000 shares, against $303,981, or 12 cents a share, in 1933.

December surplus was $3,713,811, against surplus of $6,652,932 in December, 1933.

Vote to Name Popular Pilot Next Month

By L. F. ROSS
Boston Wing Commander

Every boy and girl in New England, between the ages of 10 and 21, will be given the chance to vote for the most popular American aviator when the first annual national Popular Pilot Poll is conducted under the auspices of the Junior Birdmen in March.

Ballots for non-members and for members of the Junior Birdmen will be available in the Boston American and in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

The vote will be held to determine what pilot is liked the best by the youth of the United States. Will the winner be Lindbergh, Frank Hawks, Colonel Roscoe Turner or Amelia Earhart? Or will the honor go to a New England pilot, Crocker Snow, "Johnny" Shobe or "Teddy" Kenyon?

The answer will be known when the thousands of votes of boys and girls throughout the country will be counted March 31.

Junior Birdmen will take the leading role in bringing out a huge vote, canvassing their friends and taking the "political stump" for the pilot they admire the most. Radio, magazines and other agencies will contribute their help.

Voting will start on March 1, and all boys and girls, including those living in Canada, who are between 10 and 21 years old, will have the opportunity to participate.

The winner will receive a medal and will talk over the radio to the Junior Birdmen's banquet, which will follow the poll in each of the wing cities.

AM. SEATING

Report of American Seating Co. for year ended Dec. 31, 1934, certified by independent auditors, shows net profit of $134,075 after interest, depreciation, federal taxes, etc., equal to 66 cents a share on 202,875 no-par shares of capital stock outstanding, exclusive of 27,125 shares in the treasury. This compares with net loss of $174,037 in 1933.

Exchanges

Great Britain demand, 4.88½; cables, 4.88½; 60-day bills, 4.87⅝. France demand, 6.62; cables, 6.62. Italy demand, 8.48; cables, 8.48.

Confidence Growing in Wall Street

By WALL STREET SPECTATOR

Wall Street is almost jubilant, now that the gold clause business is ancient history. The fact that markets celebrated the government's victory and volume of trading soared with prices helped bring back the joyous feeling.

There seems to be a lot of confidence around that activity will stay well above the low levels of the last month and that the price trend will be up for a while.

For once the street guessed right in advance, that the market would improve when the decision came out.

Of course, there was no test of the view that an upturn would follow even an adverse ruling, since the New Deal scored a 100 per cent sweep . . . One of the immediate consequences was a revival of optimism about business, and the expectation that a lot of deferred buying would take place in the near future . . . A straw in the wind was the announcement by U. S. Steel that it had re-entered the market for scrap steel.

But even a "boom" like yesterday's has its forgotten class.

Stocks may have been up as much as 15 points at one time, but 95 issues closed lower, 114 were unchanged, and made new lows . . . In the latter group were the utilities, with the one-time gilt-edged Consolidated G. s and Public Service of New Jersey at record lows and rallying only a hair or two.

And the little upturn in the power list was apparently due to nervous short covering, inspired by the way the bears were being punished in the rails and the rest of the list.

First Nat. Stores

First National Stores, Inc., reports for the quarter ended Dec. 29, 1934, net profit of $634,163 after all charges and taxes, equal after preferred dividends, to 72 cents a share on the 815,267 common shares outstanding.

This compares with net of $974,431 in the like period of 1933, equal after preferred dividends to $1.09 a share on 814,566 common shares then outstanding.

WARNING SEEN FOR CONGRESS

By ROBERT H. HEMPHILL
Financial Authority

The National Recovery Act—which has been called and which may well be called, almost anything else—is to be extended for one year with authorization for an additional year at the President's discretion, if Congress carries out recommendations in his special message.

It is difficult to understand why the Administration presses for this measure which has so little evidence to justify its continuance, and which so many able men, in position to judge, have condemned as a handicap to normal recovery.

It is difficult to understand why the Administration presses for this measure which has so little evidence to justify its continuance, and which so many able men, in position to judge, have condemned as a handicap to normal recovery.

No one who has really studied the course of the depression doubts that the extreme of liquidation was reached in midsummer 1932.

Cotton Catastrophe

The presidential election, usually a disorganizing influence, hardly halted the gradual but well defined upward trend. Even the terrific shock of the bank holiday had little more than temporary influence.

Discarding the gold basis, which formerly tied us to a fixed position, while almost every other nation could jockey for advantage, was a SUBSTANTIAL recovery measure.

Commodities directly affected by the international markets naturally responded, and through our interlocking structure affected all prices to some extent.

Inflating prices, however, is not necessarily a beneficial movement. It may, and often is ultimately, deflationary in effect.

The government's suicidal 12-cent cotton loans, which in effect have practically ELIMINATED AMERICAN COTTON from the foreign trade, while other nations are MONOPOLIZING THE MARKET, will likely prove a greater catastrophe.

These are the highlights of the past two years.

Lift Stagnation

There are two indices which may always be relied upon to disclose average business movement; carloadings, and checks charged to individual accounts, outside of New York City—the goods the nation is buying and the money the nation is paying for them.

You cannot fool these indices with oratory.

Since May, 1933, after recovery from the dip caused by the bank holiday, these two indices have remained on ALMOST A DEAD LEVEL. Regardless of the widely publicized isolated instances of increased activity, the bare and plain facts remain that we are creating and exchanging exactly the same average quantity of goods we were in the spring of 1933.

If this record is compared with that of other nations whose similar indices moved upward almost parallel to ours from mid-summer, 1932, to mid-summer, 1933, and have since continued at substantially the same slant, the conclusion cannot be avoided that some depressing influence has operated TO ARREST OUR PROGRESS while that of other nations continued upward.

Even the President cannot be right all the time, and Congress should consider these important FACTS before imposing upon the nation another year or two years of DISASTROUS STAGNATION.

Dollar in Paris

Paris, Feb. 19 (AP)—The United States dollar lost 11¼ centimes today, closing at 15.0975 francs 6.623 cents to the franc) as compared to yesterday's close of 15.21 francs (6.574 cents). The opening was at 15.08 francs (6.631 cents).

Despite the long drop in the dollar price, the market in general was quiet and little affected by the Supreme court decision. Brokers said that most buying commitments were quickly liquidated as soon as the decision was known yesterday.

Parke, Davis

Parke, Davis & Co. declared an extra dividend of 20 cents and regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents, both payable March 30 to stock of record March 20. It paid an extra of 50 cents in previous quarter and extras of ten cents in the two quarters prior to that.

Kennecott

Bond Market

RISING TREND CONTINUES

New York, Feb. 19 (AP)—In the bond market today traders and investors were busy adjusting their positions in directions which seemed most advantageous in the light of the Supreme court's ruling on the gold clause cases.

There was considerable switching and evening up of trades made during the confusion and excitement of the previous day, but the market showed no lack of poise and over a fair part of the list the rising trend of Monday was continued.

In contrast with the dual swing of prices immediately after the announcement of the decision, firmness marked the entire U. S. Government list today. The gold clause issues were not as popular as the new gold series, but even some of the former in the treasury group recorded modest gains. The liberties, which contain the gold contract, were fairly steady, but a little lower generally. Gains ranged up to nearly half a point and the whole government list gave evidence of relief at the elimination of the gold clause question.

Some of the low priced speculative bonds continued to move ahead, while others, notably those which skyrocketed yesterday were a bit reactionary.

AUTO OUTPUT SHOWS GAIN IN FEBRUARY

Production schedules topping 340,000 for the short month of February and between 415,000 and 425,000 for March provide a first quarter goal for the industry of roughly 1,070,000 cars and trucks for the United States and Canada, an output exceeded only in 1926 and 1929, Automotive Industries says this week.

Unless labor disturbances should prevent, there is but little question that this goal will be reached, and there is a probability it might be surpassed.

Compared with last year the aforementioned total represents a gain of about 43 per cent in production for the first quarter, and is considerably less than that percentage below the biggest first quarter the industry has ever had.

By months, compared with last year, January showed a production gain of roughly 90 per cent, February of 41 per cent, and March should show at least a 25 per cent increase. The declining percentages, of course, are due to the low schedules in the early months of last year with new models delayed by labor troubles in the tool and die industry.

NEW DEAL Seen TURNING TO Right

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Attention has finally been directed to the public as the real sufferer in all wars between capital and labor.

Donald Richberg in discussing the NRA brought this out before Congressional committees hearing pleas for labor representation on code boards. There is something to cheer about in this attitude especially as it comes at a time when the administration is turning right on many key policies.

Donald Richberg

* * *

The right turn is a tortuous affair after nearly two years that can only be termed as liberal by the most kindly. Treatment of the new work bill and lack of an outright administration O. K. on the banking bill plus extreme quiet on the labor relations bill to be sponsored by Senator Wagner are straws in the wind indicating the trend. As the administration embraces more conservative ideas it may be expected to make enemies and alienate supporters in Congress. This in itself may be unsettling. But of minor importance when true facts are considered.

* * *

Notebook: American Can achieved its top objective for the moment when it touched the lower edge of the 123-125 area . . . Our guess of 110 and 37 as tops for the industrial and rail averages following good news on the gold cases, which we made last week, still stands . . . A reaction from close to such levels seems logical and we would not consider the buying side until it takes place . . . Chrysler is struggling to get back on the upward path but still must do things to regain pre-motor show popularity.

* * *

DuPont reacted in stubborn fashion from the 99 level and the moment decent news came along lost little time in getting back again. If the general list after retracing part of the rally of yesterday is able to quiet down and form a base at an intermediate point between the February highs and lows, du Pont is an issue worthy of close consideration. As with all issues that react reluctantly there is a distinct promise of much better things to come.

* * *

Shorts: The rails certainly sailed along at a glorious pace . . . We would not become overenthusiastic, however . . . Time enough to buy the group after the fever dies down . . . Glidden, an old favorite here, is showing signs of life . . . February, March and April, 1934, were fine months marketwise and 1935 so far indicates similar action . . . Johns Manville is doing its best to emulate American Can . . . We place it in the same class with duPont and will treat it in much the same manner.

GRAINS

Chicago, Feb. 19 (AP)—Wheat closed unchanged to ⅛ cent lower compared with yesterday's finish, May 98⅜-½, and corn was ⅛ to ⅜ down, May 87⅝-¾. Oats were ⅛ to 1 cent lower, rye 1 to 1½ down and barley ⅛ to 1 cent higher. Provisions were steady to firm.

PROFIT Taking Cuts GAINS

UTILITY GROUP IS WEAK

Renewed weakness in the utility shares, where United Gas Improvement dropped to the lowest levels since 1932, was a potent factor in snagging further upturn. Other power and light shares, including Consolidated Gas and Public Service, worked fractionally lower following the endorsement of the Utility Holding Co. bill by Dr. Splawn before the House.

United States Steel and other steel shares also were soft and held under yesterday's close throughout the session.

Omission of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas adjustment bond interest had an adverse effect on the carrier list where Atchison lost a point, while New York Central, Southern Pacific and other trading favorites suffered smaller losses.

Traction shares were among the late favorites, with I. R. T. and B. M. T. running up more than 2 points on expected unification news.

Problems

While Wall Street conceded the government had won a sweeping victory in the gold cases, it has recognized that political and economic problems still confront the recovery regime.

Consequently, most analysts were of the opinion that great selectivity will continue to rule for some time in speculative and investment fields.

In addition to pondering on trade and industrial developments, as they may be affected by the gold pronouncement, the financial district was looking forward to two more important rulings which are expected from the high court. These have to do with the constitutionality of the NRA and the railroad pension law.

Trade observers were encouraged by Dun & Bradstreet's report on business failures for the week ended Feb. 14. It was found that defaults in this period totalled only 233 against 263 and 268, respectively, in the two preceding weeks.

N. E. Telephone

At a meeting of the directors of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, held in New York on February 19, 1935, a dividend of $1.50 per share was declared, payable on Saturday March 30, 1935, to stockholders of record at the close of business on Friday, March 8, 1935.

EMPLOYMENT

TELEPHONE SALES GIRLS

We have openings in our Telephone Classified Advertising Sales Department for two girls who have had previous Telephone Sales experience.

These girls must be able to work conscienciously, making 60 to 75 contacts per day and have that persistency, which contributes to business success.

They should have a fair education, business intelligence, pleasant speaking voice and be able to follow instructions.

To these energetic and willing girls we will give a complete course in Newspaper Telephone Sales work and thus enable them to earn a good livlihood.

The compensation will be made on a salary and commission basis, thus enabling the agressive, intelligent salesgirl to practically write her own pay check.

Phone Miss Ryan, Liberty 4000.

AUTO IDENTITY CONTEST

500 GALLONS GASOLINE FREE!

. . . 15 PRIZES . . .

It's simple . . . Any one can win . . . Elsewhere on this page, the names of five 1935 automobiles are hidden among the Classified Ads. One of these makes will be the car pictured below. Paste the right make under the car and write the name of a dealer handling that car. Every day for fifteen days, February 17th to March 3rd, inclusive, the American-Advertiser will publish pictures of 1935 automobiles.

3

RULES: 15 PRIZES

1. Everyone is eligible to participate in the "Auto Identity Contest" except employees and families of employees of automobile concerns, their advertising agents and of the American and Advertiser.

2. The "Auto Identity Contest" consists in identifying the different makes as they are printed, together with naming a dealer who sells that car.

3. Every day from Feb. 17th to March 3rd, inclusive, pictures of 1935 automobile models will be published. Only one picture of any one make will be published.

4. Clip the picture out of the paper, and from one of names of five makes that will be scattered among the Classified ads, paste the right make under the car under the picture, along with the name of a dealer who sells that car. HOLD all pictures until all fifteen have been published, and then mail them to the "Auto Identity Editor," Boston Sunday Advertiser, 5 Winthrop Square.

5. All entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, March 5th. No entries will be returned to the sender.

6. Fifteen prizes, in accordance with the complete prize list published herewith, will be given to persons sending in the first fifteen correct answers to the contest. Neatness will count.

7. A committee of judges will be appointed by the American and Advertiser to determine the winners. All entrants agree to accept the decision of the judges as final.

8. It is not necessary to purchase the American or Advertiser to compete. The newspapers may be examined at our offices or at the public libraries free of charge, and if you wish you may copy or trace the pictures and then assemble the sets from the copies you have made.

Th Democratic Party and Its Forgotten Pledges

"The Democratic Party solemnly prones:

"1. An immediate and drastic reductioof governmental expenditures by abolishing useless commissions and offices, consolating departments and bureaus, and eliminating extravagance, to accomplish a savinof not less than 25 per cent in the cost of federal government.

"I have accepted the platform WITHOUT EQUIVOCATION and WITHOUT RESERVE."

"Let us have the courage TO STOP BORROWING to meet continuing deficits. STOP THE DEFICITS."

Fund for Hauptmann

Would Aid Menace

BRUNO RICHARD HAUPTMANN is in a death cell at Trenton, N. J., awaiting execution for the foulest crime of our time—the murder of the infant son of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

He was sent there by the verdict of twelve patriotic citizens and the sentence of Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, who so ably instructed them in their duty under the law.

Now, under the guise of a plea for "justice," this condemned criminal and escaped convict—illegally in the United States—would play on the heart-strings of the American people in an effort to raise a fund of fifty thousand or more dollars to conduct an appeal to the higher courts.

It is significant that Governor Hoffman of New Jersey, in announcing the receipt of thousands of letters and telegrams from all sections of the country, declared only seven had criticized the verdict of the jury.

One cent contributed to such a fund as Hauptmann and his battery of lawyers now seek is actually giving TREASONABLE AID AND COMFORT TO THE ENEMY—and the enemy is CRIME, AMERICA'S DANGER AND DISGRACE.

The Domestic Market

Factor in Defense

IN national defense the solidity of the economic system behind the armed forces has become of ever-growing importance.

Since the Great War nations have increasingly recognized the importance of establishing a genuine balanced economic life.

In this worldwide trend toward national self-containment no country is so well equipped to lead its own life as the United States.

As a result of superior social and economic organization the United States, with only 6 per cent of the world's population, has amassed more than one-third of the world's wealth and receives in excess of 40 per cent of the world's annual income.

We have long been the cynosure of foreign eyes because we have the largest per capita income, the highest per capita machinery capitalization, the highest per capita utilization of power, the highest standard of living and the greatest freedom of action on the part of a worker to seek employment or advancement where he chooses.

Unless we protect our industries and our workers from competition by alien sweatshop nations we are doomed to recede to the lower world level of poverty and insecurity.

George N. Peek, Special Foreign Trade Adviser to President Roosevelt, has grasped the true interest of the nation, and suggests that we select our foreign trade carefully so as best to promote prosperity at home.

THE Reciprocal Tariff Act gives the President the power to modify tariff rates by 50 per cent.

Under the National Industrial Recovery Act the Chief Executive has the power to place embargoes on the importation of such products as he sees fit.

Having gone through the nightmare of stimulating exports by making careless and uncollectable foreign loans, there is increasing recognition that goods must be exchanged for goods.

To depart from intelligent protectionism would weaken our national defenses and would end our adventure in dispensing social justice through free economic opportunity.

Our Shoe Industry

Can Be Saved

NEW ENGLAND'S shoe industry can be saved.

It has been brought out of the doldrums in other years when many thought it doomed.

It takes place in Room 270, State House, at 2 p. m.

"If a peace pact can be arrived at," says Chairman Gleason L. Archer, "so that wholesale dealers in boots and shoes can be assured that strikes and lockouts may not interfere with filling of orders, Massachusetts may hope to regain its lost supremacy in this great industry.

"Cities and towns will be called upon to CO-OPERATE in this movement.'

Foot Specialists

Gather in Boston

The event, open to the public, calls to mind the fact that the first chiropody office was opened in Boston on Washington street North 95 years ago.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

WHY BE GOOD IF IT GRIPES YOU?

As a child I was completely surrounded by Good People. This fact was supposed to be a Wonderful Break for which I should be accordingly grateful. Good People, I was assured, were the Salt of the Earth.

Maybe! But I couldn't for the life of me work up a snitch of admiration for 'em. To the contrary, they bored me to tears or aroused me to contemptuous snickers.

Elsie Robinson

In vain did the Old Folks point out their nobility. Even so—said I—what good had it done them? Undoubtedly they were Good. But was that really because they liked it? Or because they couldn't help themselves?

Whichever the cause, they were certainly—for the most part—a drab and dejected lot. Storing up treasure in heaven, were they?

Perhaps. But they acted, rather, as if they were being short-changed here on earth. If Being Good did THAT to a human being, they could count me Out!

WHY WAS IT?

On the other hand, it was obvious that certain other citizens were thoroughly enjoying themselves, although they were held up to me as Horrible Examples of everything I shouldn't be.

They seldom had, it was true, much of this world's wealth. They lived in a condition of happy-go-lucky disorder which was, I was assured, Utterly Deplorable. But just why, I wondered, did my elders arrive at this curious conclusion?

Why was it "deplorable" to live gaily, without depressing fear of a future hell or even more disgusting calculation on a future heaven? Were we not urged on most excellent authority to "take no thought of tomorrow"?

Here are humans who obeyd that precept enthusiastically. Also, they "loved their brother" without stint or reservation. Yet for these very reasons they were most strongly condemned. It was certainly bewildering.

ALWAYS APPLAUDED

Invariably the Villain and Villainess monopolized all the charm, intelligence and go-get-'em traits, while the Virtuous were a spineless, wishy-washy crew. And instead of weeping for their afflictions, I always applauded vigorously.

In short, Bad People (or those so rated) were Fun and made Fun for others. Good People weren't and didn't.

But if Righteousness was as desirable as it was cracked up to be, why didn't they? And what sort of an inducement did they offer anyone to follow in their steps? None that a lively youngster could see.

This was, as I now know, a most foolish conclusion. Yet have you ever known a red-blooded human who didn't share it? Wouldn't you, yourself, far rather consort with a gay sinner than a grim saint? Gwan—you know you would!

Even if we have no other life than this—even if there be no "future reward"—there's pride enough in being honest, there's warmth enough in being kind, there's thrill enough in being brave, there's joy enough in being clean, to make goodness worth while for anyone, without a bonus.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Feb. 19—The Big Town is not even a minor thrill for the magazine editor, George Horace Lorimer. Although no further away than Philadelphia, he seldom makes a visit.

O. O. McIntyre

His antipathy is not clearly defined. It rath- hangs on the principles of "I do not love thee, Dr. Fell—!"

There are many apocryphal stories that even when he goes to Boston or other points points east, he manages to route himself to avoid the metropolis.

Although a number of his established writers are residents of New York, he has them come to the city of Brotherly Love. Or dispatches scouts.

While his indifference in later years has been passive, there was a time when his animosity took the form of arrangement with Irvin Cobb to cook up a series of critical articles, cleverly captioned: "Twixt the Bluff and the Sound!"

He has softened a little, but not many S. E. P. stories glorify Gotham.

Most Philadelphians of his prominence belong to New York clubs, but he does not. His native city is Louisville, Ky., but formative years were spent in Chicago and, next to Philadelphia, that city is highest in his affections.

Its family parties on Sunday evenings often include Al Smith, Theodore Dreiser, Nathan Burkan and Bernard Baruch. The music is mostly Viennese waltzes with now and then an overtone of Wagner.

On a recent night, Trahan arrived from the theater to find the dog had gorged on an upset box of candy filled with brandy, cordials, etc. In a word the pup was swacked.

20 Cigars a Day

So little is the pipe smoked on New York streets that the wandering Englishman stoking up frequently causes a turning of heads.

About the only public-be-hanged pipe smokers are Howard Chandler Christy, Bob Brinkerhoff and Christopher Morley.

The cosmopolitan giddy-ap has made a city of cigarette smokers, who can snaffle a few quick puffs and flip the end away before flitting here and there.

The prejudice against the pipe has driven it from the cafe and most of the club lounges.

Colonel E. M. House has endured the first New York winter in many years. Usually he goes on a Mediterranean cruise or South.

But this season writing engagements made it necessary to stay near the home base and he has come through in good health.

Most of Colonel House's adult years have been devoted to a scrupulous regimen due to physical frailty. This makes his enormous activities in public affairs all the more remarkable.

He adheres to a strict rule about rising early and retiring not later than 10:30. Every late afternoon he walks at least a mile with his Cairn.

Our Criminal Law

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

A most sensational recent criminal trial has recalled to my mind, as it must have to the minds of thousands of others, these words of William Howard Taft, uttered with all the force and dignity which his position as chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States would command:

Edwin C. Hill

Twenty-five or thirty years ago we explained it away by the statement that our alien population was to blame, millions of persons coming into a new country and not being properly assimilated.

NEW CRIME AVENUES

Nobody at the time troubled to remember that the countries which these people had left were far behind our own in the number of homicides and felonies.

Prohibition came along to take the onus, and had its share in opening up new avenues of crime and corruption.

We have so much crime—vicious crime like the Los Angeles Bombing, the St. Valentine Massacre of Chicago and the Lindbergh Kidnaping—because the American criminal knows that he has an even chance of escaping punishment.

And that chance is his because the American people are content to function under an archaic legal system, which is milk and honey to the type of practitioner in no small minority in the criminal courts.

These conclusions are neither new nor entirely mine. For the last one let me quote an address to the American Law Institute by Supreme Court Justice Royal Stone of Minnesota, in 1930:

CONDITION WORSE

"The public is not much to be blamed if it is getting the notion that we (the legal profession) are, on the whole, rather a bad lot. Of recent years the condition has become worse, rather than better.

"Our profession is not so well considered today as it was ten or twenty years ago. It is plain that we do not enjoy the degree of public confidence of which we aspire to be worthy on the ethical side. No profession and no business is put on a lower plane in the lay mind than our own."

Elmer Rice in his "Counsellor-at-Law" and Gene Fowler in his "Great Mouthpiece," both of which had wide success on the stage and screen, present a pretty accurate picture of the practice of criminal law as it is known to any newspaper reporter who has been around the courts of our large cities for any length of time.

The criminal code of every state in the Union is based, to use the vernacular, on the premise: "Give the criminal every break." That expression was not used in England 300 years ago, but it is the root of the English common law which we follow so blindly today.

In those times of Lord Jeffreys and the "Bloody Assizes" and down even until 1770, more than 150 crimes in England were punishable by death.

The judges rebelled at sending every Tom, Dick and Harry to the gallows, and since Parliament would not alter conditions, the court began to seek ways to bring about acquittal of the guilty.

He points out how the bench and bar of England united for years in bitter opposition to the extensive reform of the criminal code in England which was finally effected in 1907.

The changes were forced by public opinion and written by commissions made up mostly of laymen with the lawyers and judges very much in the minority.

How different the face of the report of ex-President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission. Here was a body of our most eminent lawyers proposing an extensive reform to compare with that of England's.

Pork-Barrel Congressmen Wreck Foreign Service

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR.

Before the pork barrel politicians in the present Congress destroy the foreign service of the United States they should be compelled by an outraged public sentiment to heed the mandate at the railway crossing—"Stop, look and listen!"

Justice Hughes

"We have come to a situation where, unless something is done this year," Congressman Bacon of New York warned the House of Representatives the other day, "we are going to have a breakdown and a disintegration of our foreign service."

For the fiscal year 1935-1936 the House has reduced the appropriation for the support of the foreign service by $200,000.

Since 1931 the strength of this service has been reduced by 10 per cent. No recruits have been admitted by competitive examination since that time.

MAIN REASON

In addition to the 82 persons eliminated from the Foreign Service since 1931, 40 more will have to be dismissed within a year unless the Senate calls a halt upon the reduction in the appropriation which the House has foolishly voted.

The main reason why politicians of the present Congress are more interested in breaking down than building up of the foreign service is because appointments to that service have been by competitive examination since 1924.

If appointment to these services were by political preferment the appropriation for the service would doubtless have been increased by the House instead of being reduced.

Three is no political pork in the foreign service. The average politician who is looking for pork in the form of federal appointments is unable to put his followers in these positions because admission to them is only by competitive examination which the candidates or pork barrel politicians would not as a rule be able to pass.

The short-sighted enemies of the foreign service have claimed that it represents only a privileged class dwelling mostly in the New England and North Atlantic States.

As a matter of fact only 43 per cent of the foreign service is made up of representatives of these States.

The Central, Southern and Western States contribute 57 per cent of the appointments to this service, although the population center of the country falls in southern Indiana, east of the Mississippi River.

Its 687 officers are spread over the entire world. They are reporting constantly upon all sorts of questions in which the Government is interested.

They undertake to supply the facts in the light of which the Government can come to sound conclusions.

USEFUL SERVICE

Some of the pork hunters of Congress say the foreign service should be reduced because our foreign trade is on the decline. In saying this these politicians advertise to the country their ignorance of the facts.

The facts are that in 1934 the value of our exports showed a 27 per cent increase over 1933—a dollar value increase of nearly half a billion dollars.

If the Senate will take the time to look into the facts, it will not repeat the mistake made by the House. This is no time to turn over the foreign service to the raids or exploitations of pork barrel politicians.

Isn't It So?
